Johnny Hammar, 1426 323rd St. machine operator. "I'll vote no as I think this proposition would do away with unions and hiring halls. I would not want to see this happen as I am for organized labor."

Ed Mosherberry, 714 Border farmer. "My wife says vote no on Proposition 18. So, I'll vote no and for once we agree. Seriously, I am for labor, although I have never belonged to a union."

Jack Hanna, 1411 257th St. Harbor City printer. "I'll sure vote no on Proposition 18. If this bill passes I think it will reduce wages and that won't be good. In fact, I can't see any good in it."

Mrs. Henry Goode, North Hollywood housewife. "Yes, I favor Proposition 18 and will vote for it. I am sick and tired of strikes and all of the hardships they cause. I also do not like union leaders."

J. Allison Miller, Palms Verdes, aircraft component manufacturer. "I will certainly vote yes on Proposition 18. I realize that labor needs organization, but I also think the individual should have the right to make his own decision on unionism."

Harry Mead, East Los Angeles, dump truck driver. "My answer is no. If you vote for this Proposition 18 you will be cutting your own throat. Belonging to a union has sure paid off for me."

BUCKS FOR BROWN... John Barton has been named chairman of a "Bucks for Brown" fund drive to raise money for the Torrance Voters for Pat Brown committee.

THIRTY PERCENT TURNOUT 10,000 Ballots Cast on Bonds

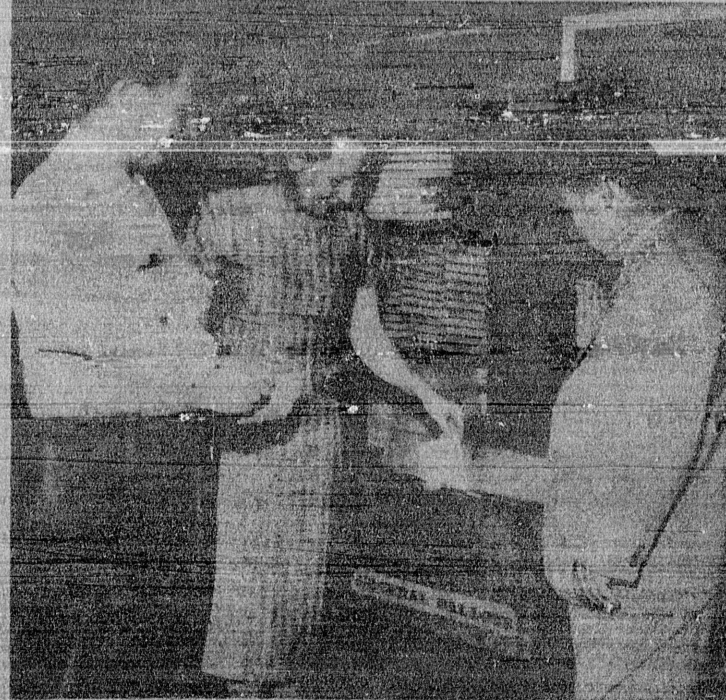

More than 10,000 voters, or 30 per cent of those eligible, kept the bond election record of the Torrance school system unblemished here Tuesday by voting nearly 8 to 1 in favor of a $15,000,000 bond issue. Final unofficial tally showed 9328 voting "Yes" and 1335 voting "No."

Voting was especially heavy in the newer sections of the city which expect new schools or where additions to existing schools are contemplated. It was lightest in the older sections of town where the school population has diminished. The downtown Torrance residents voting at the old city hall was the only precinct failing to give the proposal the necessary two-thirds majority.

In contrast, the Casimir precinct recorded nearly 15 to 1 for the bonds, Flavian nearly 23 to 1, and Hillside nearly 14 to 1.

Complete voting statistics by precincts:
