

San Pedro Theater Group Opens Double Bill Friday

A double theater treat is in store for South Bay and harbor area theatergoers in the coming production of the San Pedro Theatre Arts, scheduled opening Nov. 14.

There will be two plays, although the total time in the playhouse at 501 S. Carillo Ave., San Pedro, will be the same as an ordinary three-act play.

The comedy farce "Seven Nuns at Las Vegas" written by Natalie E. White and directed by Nancy Andrews of 2465 W. 250th St., Lomita.

The second play is a one-act comedy "Poor Old Jim," written by William De Mille and directed by Charles Hackbusch of 4520 Pacific Coast Hwy., Torrance.

Both plays are scheduled for performances at 8:15 p.m. Nov. 14, 15, 16, Nov. 21, 22, 23, and Nov. 28, 29, 30, at the group's playhouse.

"Seven Nuns at Las Vegas" is the story of an invalid nun who prays that she be taken from a cold Indiana climate to a warmer one. Under strange circumstances, some Friday morning she and six other nuns find themselves and their convent in a warm, dry climate, but they don't know where.

"AFTER THEY" completely confuse the business population, the nuns discover they are in a city called Las Vegas, Nev. It is then that the plot thickens and mayhem ensues.
