

Legislative Committees Hold Hearings

By VINCENT THOMAS
 Assemblyman, 68th District
 With the whirlwinds of the general election behind us, members of both houses are returning their attention to the work of the various inter-committee work between belong. All such groups are required to report to the next regular session, which convenes in less than two months, within specified time limits after it starts.

In order to complete their work in time, Assembly, Senate and Joint committees are scheduling a heavy program of meetings during the coming weeks. More than 30 hearings in communities all over the State will be held this month, and almost as many are in prospect for December. As a result, most Legislators will be devoting practically full time to committee work between other will hold a joint meeting with the full Senate narcotics committee on a stepped-up program of public education on narcotics.

ENUMERATION OF just a few of the important matters to be considered at these hearings will indicate the wide range of legislative problems your lawmakers must struggle with to develop measures which will benefit all of California as well as every segment of its citizens. Some of the topics will be hotly controversial. Others will involve working out statutory solutions which balance the interests of many diverse groups.

In the field of public health, one subgroup of the Assembly committee will review the status of air pollution laws. Another will hold a joint meeting with the full Senate narcotics committee on a stepped-up program of public education on narcotics.

TWO SUBCOMMITTEES of the Assembly judiciary committee have announced meetings. Organized crime and its effects on our State will be taken up by the racketeers subgroup. Price wars in the petroleum industry will be probed by the other.

California's salmon fisheries and other problems of salt and freshwater life will be investigated at two meetings of the Assembly fish and game committee. Fish plantings in streams and increased cultivation of oysters will also be studied.

An intensive long-term study of our public schools is being launched by the joint committee on the public education system. The Citizens Advisory Commission appointed by this committee will hold another joint meeting with it this month. Commission spokesmen have already said that the investigation will be a thorough and impartial one, and may consume several years.

SUPPORT OF education is the largest charge on the State's general fund, and one of your Legislature's responsibilities is to see that necessary money is always available for schools. The Assembly committee on revenue and taxation has scheduled a meeting to review the economic situation, its effect on revenues of the general fund, and to consider additional sources of income if the need is demonstrated.

The joint committee on agricultural and livestock problems will hold a series of three meetings in the northern, central and southern parts of the State. The legislative needs of our vast agricultural empire will be explored in preparation for the regular session.

Last, but far from least, is the water problem which ties

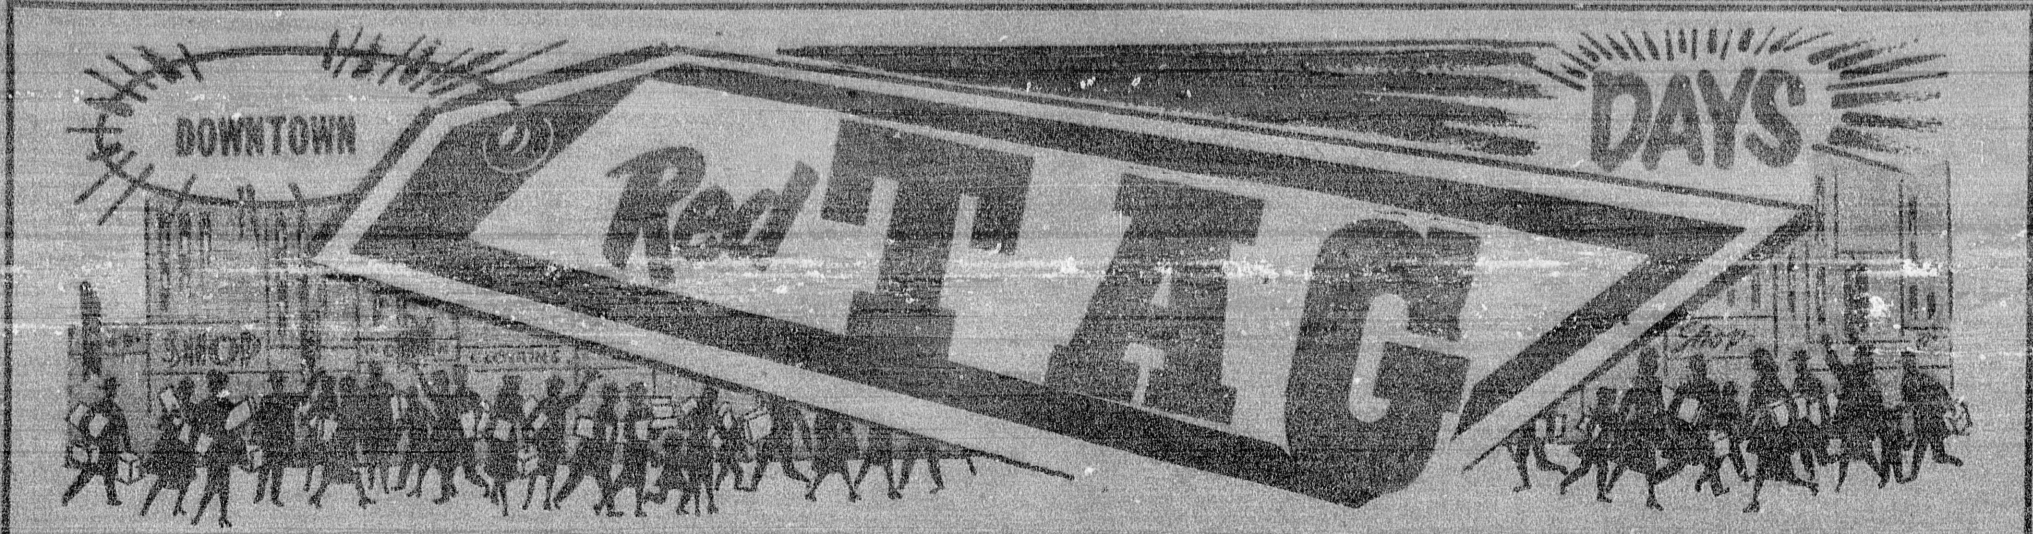

Youth Economy Run to Start Here Next Year

Torrance will be the starting point for the 1959 Youth Economy sessions in knots. The drafting subgroup of the joint committee on water resources development problems will hold another conference on the wording of a constitutional amendment on water which will be satisfactory to both northern and southern interests.

Safety Run, sponsored by the Police Advisory Council for Car Clubs, when young enthusiasts throughout the Los Angeles-Long Beach area again head for Yosemite National Park, it was announced this week by Police Chief Perc Bennett.

Participating in the joint next June will be youth club members from 29 area police precincts. Emphasis will be on safe and economical driving.

Representing Torrance on the advisory council are Officers Sam Piazza and A. L. Jackson. Function of the council is to promote safe, constructive activities among "hot rod" enthusiasts.
