School District To Fete 10-Year Staff Members

Twenty-eight employees of the Torrance Unified School District will be honored for 10 years service at a special breakfast to be held in the Torrance High School cafeteria on Tuesday, Sept. 13, according to Personnel Director Robert Morton.

The list includes 18 teachers and administrators and 10 non-teaching employees. The eight men and 20 women represent some 280 years of service to education. Last year, pins were presented to 93 persons who had served in the district 10 or more years.

EJECTION CONTROL . . . Designed and built by Horkey-Moore Assoc. of Torrance, the long finned booms attached to the pod of the projected B-70 Valkyrie will provide the bomber's crew a smooth ride if they are forced to eject from the mach 3 plane. The pod and booms are being tested by North American Aviation, builder of the B-70.

NAA Testing Ejection Aid Designed by Horkey-Moore

A pair of stabilizing booms attached to the escape capsules installed in North American Aviation's B-70 Valkrie will provide ejected airmen with a smooth descent if ejection from the Mach 3 bomber becomes necessary.

Designed and fabricated by Horkey-Moore Assoc., the long cylindrical booms will serve as stabilizers for the rocket-propelled encapsulated seat during ejection into free-flight and until the recovery - parachute slows descent.

The encapsulated seat was designed in a "shirt-sleeve environment while providing protection if it is necessary to leave the craft — even at speeds above 2000 mph. The booms provide areodynamic stability, exerting lift and drag forces orientated to the capsule's center of gravity. Tumbling is eliminated while the occupant remains in a sitting position.

A solid fuel rocket hurls the capsule and rider 380 ft. above the Valkrie's tail—high enough to insure parachute inflation even at low altitudes.

The encapsulated seat and its stabilizing booms are being tested by North American Aviation. Horkey-Moore is a division of Houston Fearless Corporation.
