D.A. McKesson Renews Fight on Rules of Evidence Restrictions

So ridiculous are the effects of present restrictions on rules of evidence in California courts that private citizens have far greater leeway in making an arrest than does a regularly sworn peace officer, District Attorney William B. McKesson observed today.

"This is due entirely to the double standards of applying arbitrary rules of evidence," he explained. McKesson said any realistic evaluation of how the controversial rules of evidence are applied completely disprove arguments of some that to change them would undermine civil rights.

"IF CIVIL rights are protected by these rules," he demanded, "why aren't the same rules applicable to private citizen arrests as well. And why are these rules of evidence a determining force in criminal cases but not in civil cases?" Suppose, McKesson continued, a mother of minor children is arrested as a narcotics violation suspect. Rules of evidence applied causes the court to release her on the grounds evidence against her was illegally obtained.

ONCE FREE, her husband or family brings suit against her to prove she is not a fit mother. "Believe it or not, the same evidence and same witnesses that were not acceptable to the criminal court now become completely acceptable to a civil court and where the woman once was released on what is nothing more than a legal loophole, she now can have her children taken away from her."

McKESSON said that if the controversial rules of evidence truly protect civil right and Constitutional guarantees, "then why don't the same rules apply to civil cases or citizen's arrests as apply to criminal cases and arrests by peace officers?"

A private detective, for example, McKesson continued, might kick down a door and burst into your home or apartment to secure evidence in a civil matter. The evidence so obtained is admissible. Yet a police officer cannot do the same thing when he suspects a crime is being committed, even though by bursting into a room he finds ten peddlers busily packaging heroin. This evidence is not admissible.

"THE COURTS which by decision established these rules concede they are not Constitutional guarantees but are rules of evidence.

"The truth here is that rules of evidence being so warmly defended by some people are not to protect civil rights but are built-in loopholes which afford the criminal too much latitude to escape the consequences of his criminal acts." The only Constitutional guarantees being violated today, he declared, are those of Society to be free of the excessive outrageous acts of the criminal.

Chicago Cubs Signs Former Little Leaguer

Evan Harris, former Little League player in Torrance, has been signed to a contract with the Chicago Cubs as a pitcher, it was reported here this week. Harris, who played for the Braves in the National League here, later played for North High and for the Angels in the Babe Ruth League.

He was signed to the Cub system by Gene Handley and reported to Mesa, Ariz.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Harris, former Torrance residents who now reside in Van Nuys.

WHAT'S DOING

R. S. Pyle, your Telephone Manager in Torrance

What would you think of pushing buttons to make your phone calls? Well, someday you may be doing that instead of twirling a dial.

Telephone people are testing push-button phones like this in various places around the country. The tests show that most folks can push-button a number in five seconds—nearly twice as fast as they dial now.

I'm told that if these tests continue to go well our phones of the future may have push buttons instead of a dial.

Lots of new telephone ideas are heading your way. For telephone people are always working to improve your service.

I noticed in a telephone company magazine the other day that the Bell Solar Battery was first announced seven years ago this month.

At the time, it was big news that Bell Telephone Laboratories had found a way to turn sunlight directly and efficiently into electricity. But little did we know then that solar batteries would soon make even bigger news—as a part of satellites in outer space. That's the weather satellite Tiros II in the picture above.

The Bell Solar Batteries on the Tiros II satellite furnish the power to send radio and television messages back to earth.

Telephone research produces a steady flow of new ideas like the Bell Solar Battery. And these ideas are opening new doors in every field of communications.

You hear about cats having nine lives, but they're not alone. Phone people have found other things can have extra lives, too.

Maybe you've noticed that after one of our installers puts in a phone he saves the box it came in.

We keep these boxes after phones are installed and use them over and over. Every re-use saves 8¢.

Doesn't sound like much but multiplied thousands of times a month, this really mounts up. It's savings like this that help us give you more for your telephone dollar.
