Local Students Filling Summer School Classes

Nearly 9000 youngsters — representing more than one-third of the regular school enrollment — were enrolled in Torrance summer school programs, according to Mrs. Trudy Aldershof, director. Summer scholars included 6495 elementary students and 2475 high schoolers. Enrollment on Tuesday rose about 275 over the Monday figures.

FIRST DAY enrollments were up 20 per cent over the same day a year ago. An increasing interest in high school summer courses was indicated by an increase of more than 60 per cent over last year. Expanded programs for students, especially eighth graders, are featured. Torrance's summer school program is considered an extension of the regular school year, with classes for all students — bright, average, and slow.

SOUTH HIGH enrolled 1069 students, while North High had 1009 and Torrance High, 397.

Seaside and Riviera Elementary Schools led the list with 428 and 419 students, respectively. Other enrollments included: Adams, 132; Anza, 218; Arlington, 240; Calle Mayor, 221; Carr, 274; Casimir, 169; Crenshaw, 288; Edison, 230; Fern-Greenwood, 194; Flavian, 305; Hamilton, 160; Hillside, 294; Jefferson, 145; Lincoln, 224; Madrona, 194; Magruder, 150; Meadow Park, 286; Newton, 262; Parkway, 269; Perry, 214; Sepulveda, 191; Steele, 286; Torrance Elementary, 164; WALTERIA, 182; Wood, 141; and Yukon, 155. Columbia School had 60.

Knotty Legal Maze Jeopardizes Harvest of State's Fruit Crop

By VINCENT THOMAS Assemblyman, 68th District Every Californian, regardless of whether he lives in a city, a country town, or on a farm, eats to live. This obvious fact gives him an understandable concern for a reliable and steady supply of food. When that supply is endangered, he naturally wants some action taken to end the threat.

This year a situation has arisen in California agriculture which has already caused a partial loss in one important fruit crop, is now affecting another, and which could cause serious losses in other big fruit crops as they come to harvest time. Cherries, apricots, peaches, tomatoes, melons — many important food products which our state furnishes to the entire nation are involved. The situation has arisen because of efforts to organize the farm laborers who harvest the crops.

SO SERIOUS is the matter regarded that the Senate fact-finding committee on labor and welfare called a special meeting to gather facts about it. The possibility of requesting a special session to deal with the problem was even discussed. As might have been expected, spokesmen for the farmers and for organized labor expressed completely opposite opinions with respect to the situation. The one point on which they seemed to be agreed was that the cause of the whole problem involves some very knotty legal questions. The central one was put in these words: "Can the harvest of all perishable farm products be completed with economic justice and without undue loss under existing federal and state labor law?"

THE REASON for this question was brought out by the department of employment in a statement made at the hearing. This department operates the farm labor placement service with funds received from the federal department of labor under the Wagner-Peyser Act. To qualify for these funds our California agency must comply with federal regulations which prohibit referral of workers to any place of employment where a labor dispute exists. This agency also certifies as to the need by farmers for foreign workers, mostly Mexican, imported to help harvest crops when not enough domestic workers are available. But the employment department cannot certify to such need if the imported workers would be used to replace domestic off-the-job because of a labor dispute.

WHILE THERE is no definition of such a dispute in the Wagner-Peyser Act, our state Supreme Court has recently ruled that even if there is no employer-employee relationship between the parties, but a picket line does exist, there is a labor dispute. In such cases the department can refer neither domestic or foreign workers.

Spokesmen for farmers maintain the combined effect of these laws and rulings really put them on the spot. One man, they declare, who applies for a farm job, refuses it for any reason, can tell the union a dispute exists. Without giving the farmer any opportunity to negotiate, the union can tell the department a dispute exists, and immediately all referrals are stopped. In perishable crops which are ready for picking today, but rotting tomorrow, inability to secure labor at the right time can lose a farmer his whole year's work. Since our biggest California harvest season is now on, the farmers are asking for relief on an emergency basis.

LABOR SPOKESMEN strongly upheld the law, the rulings and the department's policy. They maintained that the only farmers picketed are those who will not negotiate. They said they are opposed to the importation of foreign nationals, and hope to end that program in a few years by improving wages and working conditions for American workers. They denied any intent to create crop losses, but maintained their right to impose "economic sanctions" on farmers who resist organization.

In the meantime, immediate relief is being sought by farmers in Washington.
