Local Plant Perfects New Switch Box

A new technique in sampling switches has been introduced by the Magnavox Research Laboratories. Magnavox is located at 2928 Maricopa Avenue, Torrance. Announcement of the new device came from the office of Al Nelson, Data System Director. The Magnavox Research Laboratories, in a new approach to the art of high speed low level switching, have developed a magnetically actuated sampling switch. The elimination of sliding contacts, which are inherently noisy and heat generators and are also short-lived, has made possible a switch design capable of fast operation at extremely low signal levels having life exceeding 200 million operations.

THE MAGNAVOX Sampling Switch is well suited to the rapid sampling of multiple low level transducers such as strain gauges and thermocouples. In many applications the switching unit introduces less than ten (10 uv) microvolts of extraneous signal into the circuit being commutated regardless of impedance level. Dwell periods as brief as 300 microseconds and dynamic resistances of less than 1.0 ohms enable fast, accurate multiplexing of low level transducers.

A switching unit consists of a drive motor, a housing and two rings (up to 90) of sequentially actuated cartridges. Each cartridge, in a ring, is a single pole double throw switch. A cartridge from each ring (when simultaneously actuated) forms a double pole double throw data channel. Additional units can be ganged on the same drive shaft.

A SINGLE switching unit may be used to commutate as many as 90 double ended channels at rates up to 3,000 total samples per second. During a switching period, some voltage is induced into each switch cartridge due to the actuating poles of the rotor. When the commutator is used for double ended switching, cartridges are switched in pairs and will cancel each other to within 20 microvolts. Even this slight induced voltage is a constant waveform and may be calibrated out for greatest accuracy.

Magnavox switching units may be readily coupled and phased to sample larger numbers of transducers all at one synchronous rate. Transducers may also be cross-jumpered on the switching units to obtain extremely high sampling rates.

ADDING greatly to the versatility and usefulness of the Magnavox Sampling Switch is the optional inclusion of magnetic heads which intercept fringing flux from timing marks on the rotor and provide phaseable synchronizing outputs coincident with each switch dwell period and each revolution of the rotor. These synchronizing outputs are useful for triggering digitizers, for decommutation purposes, for telemetering synchronization and for many other purposes. The sync output eliminates the need to trigger on the leading edges of dwell periods or the wasteful use of switches to generate timing functions. The switch cartridges are, however, individual circuits and need not be connected to a main amplifier bus if other functions are required to be switched in other circuits.
