"Your Daughter Needs Help..."

Dear Ann Landers: I need some help with my 11-year-old daughter. I raised her without a father — he left shortly after the girl was born. Now I know what you mean when you say a child needs two parents.

Ever since Eunice was a tot she was overly affectionate with men. She loved to sit on their laps, hug and kiss them.

This was considered cute when she was a toddler and naturally she received a lot of affection in return. I thought she'd outgrow this lap-sitting and hair-combing, but she hasn't.

She kisses the delivery men, the paper boy, her girl friend's father — anyone in trousers. I'm terribly worried about where it may lead. Please tell me how I can put a stop to it. — WORRIED SICK.

Dear Worried: Little girls who grow up with no father are often starved for male attention. They try to compensate for this loss by behaving aggressively with "anyone in trousers."

Your daughter needs professional help. Contact your family doctor, clergymen or the local mental health clinic. An expert who knows how to deal with troubled children may be able to change the course of this girl's life.

Dear Ann Landers: Have you got some pull with the shoe manufacturers? Please say something about the monstrosities they force us women to wear. For two years we've had to cram our feet into a needle-pointed horror. Now they are coming out with a square-toed nightmare. Who ever heard of a woman's foot coming to a point — or a square foot, for that matter? I'm not ashamed to admit that I'm vain and wouldn't be caught dead in last year's styles. As a result I'm a near cripple. If enough women complain the manufacturers will have to change the styles. Please say something and help liberate us from this trend to foot torture. — LIMPING LOU.

Dear Limping: Don't blame the shoe manufacturers. It's the women who are to blame. Females who complain about shoe styles fall into two categories. The majority of screamers are vain dames who, 20 years ago, wore 5 A, and are loathe to give up the fantasy that their iddy-biddy tootsies have spread a bit — with four pregnancies and an added 20 years. It isn't the style that's murdering them, it's the size.

The second group of complainers have long since wrecked their feet with ill-fitting footwear and if they wore the boxes instead of the shoes, their feet would still hurt.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband passed away eight months ago. Since then I have stayed home night and day and worked myself half to death so my time would be occupied and I wouldn't go crazy with grief.

Several women friends and a few gentlemen have invited me to dinner and other places, and I'd like to accept but my mother-in-law says no decent woman would accept a social invitation before "a year is up." She says I owe it to the memory of my husband to show him this respect.

We were happily married for 14 years and I feel I showed my respect" by being a good wife and mother. Do you think my mother-in-law is right? I need your advice — STIR NUTS.

Dear Stir Nuts: Life is for the living. If you think you would enjoy an evening out — GO.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Before You Marry Is It Love?" Send enclosed with your name and address in coin and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them in care of this newspaper, using a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

1902 School Chums Make Up Lost Time

By DARRELL MADDOX
Herald Staff Writer

"Remember when" is a favorite phrase in a Torrance home now as two women who have known each other for 10 years discuss their school days in 1902 at Canonsburg, Pa., after only recently finding out they were school chums.

Mrs. A. J. Johnson, 73, of 1902 Gramercy Ave., and Mrs. Robert L. Hibbard, 72, of Harbor City recently discovered they lived next door to each other at Canonsburg and attended elementary school together.

A gay reunion was held last week as the two got together, swapped stories and showed pictures of their school days.

Mrs. Johnson's granddaughter married Mrs. Hibbard's son, Robert, 10 years ago. The reunion of the two women came about after Mrs. Johnson told Robert Hibbard that she would probably be happier if she had some of her school chums around her and mentioned the maiden name of Hibbard's mother. The reunion of the two came about that same day.

Both women are widows now, so many hours are spent together recalling old memories. They both remember a second grade teacher who spanked them for each word they misspelled.

"I got quite a few spankings," Mrs. Hibbard says. "The principal carried a big, long stick that he rapped the students with. Spankings were not uncommon in schools in those days," she added.

"Children had discipline in those days and were not allowed to talk in the classroom at all. Go into a classroom now and there is such a hubbub you wonder if the teacher or the kids are running the class," Mrs. Hibbard said.

There are other memories besides those of school days such as the time Canonsburg residents saw the first automobile in town. It was made by a local man who installed a motor on an open buggy. Both have been back to Canonsburg and say the school and town is about the same as when they lived there, even to the extent of having about the same population.

Mrs. Johnson has lived in Torrance 30 years. She has five married sons. Her husband worked at the city's Columbia Steel mill.

Mrs. Hibbard moved to Long Beach in 1920 and since then has lived in San Pedro, Wilmington, Lomita and for the past 15 years has resided in Harbor City. Her husband was a longshoreman. The couple had four children, all grown and married.

R. Norrises Return For Short Visit

Mr. and Mrs. Rod Norris, who moved to Philadelphia, Pa., a few months ago, have been in Torrance since Wednesday as houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Bolen, 1744 Iris Ave. They leave today for their home. Mr. Norris came to Torrance on business and the trip was a birthday present for Mrs. Norris.

Arriving by plane last Wednesday evening they were met by a host of Torrance friends. The Wednesday evening bridge club, of which Mrs. Norris is a past member, met for bridge at the home of Mrs. Robert Morton. After the games, the group left for the airport to meet the visitors. In the party were Mmes. Morton, E. E. Clayton, Henry Backlund, Parke Montague, Robert Clayton, Burton Eastley, William Christian and Jack Brooks.

Others at the airport on hand to welcome the Norrises were Dr. and Mrs. Allen Pyeatt and sons, and Mr. and Mrs. Art Woodcock.

On Thursday evening, Dr. and Mrs. Pyeatt entertained at a dinner party at their home, 24 Caballeros Rd., Rolling Hills, honoring the Norrises. Other guests were Dr. and Mrs. Burton Easley, Messrs. and Mmes. William Christian, R. D. Bolen and Arthur Woodcock.

Friday evening, the Norrises were guests at the La's Fiesta summer party.

Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Bolen entertained at a birthday dinner for Mrs. Norris. This celebration has been an occasion for the past 16 years.

and white candles for the marriage ceremony, Saturday evening, Aug. 5 at 8 o'clock in which Miss Betty Jo Hope exchanged her wedding promises with Howard J. Robinson, Jr. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest D. Hope, 603 Madrid Ave., Torrance.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Robinson, Sr. of Baltimore, Maryland.

Mr. Hope walked to the altar with his daughter and gave her in marriage. She wore a ballerina length gown of white nylon organza over taffeta. The gown had a lace bodice and a shirred cummerbund. It was fashioned with a scoop neckline and cap sleeves. A lace crown outlined with small pearls and iridescent sequins held the fingertip illustration veil. The bride carried a bouquet of Eucharist lilies and stephanotis.

Mrs. Kent L. Harding was the matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mmes. William Brazel and Frederick Hayes. All were gowned in pink cotton chiffon and carried crescent bouquets of pink gladioli.

Warren E. Robinson performed the duties of best man and ushers were Kent L. Harding and Larry Amberg.

The Rev. Gilbert Zimmerman, pastor, officiated at the marriage. Mrs. Ruth Magarth played the wedding marches and accompanied Rev. Donald Shelby who sang "O Perfect Love" and "Wedding Benediction".

A reception was held in the church parlor. Mrs. Odell Peterson was in charge of the guest book.

After a honeymoon in Santa Barbara, the newlyweds will be at home in Gardena.
