... Ann Landers

(Continued from Page 27) husband stay off the horn and settle it with HIM. There would be fewer wrecked lives and emotionally disturbed children if kids didn't have the paneled doors of parental homes ready to swing open for them.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been going with Yuk (his nick name) for six months. He has lots of faults but I was crazy about him and decided since I wasn't perfect I shouldn't be so fussy. He had a bad habit of breaking dates at the last minute or not showing up at all. My mother got furious over this but his excuses were so sensible I never felt it was a slam against me.

Last night Yuk came over to tell me he wanted to break up. When I began to cry he offered me his brother as a substitute. He says his brother has always liked me and he's more my type. Well, Ann, I don't want his brother. I want HIM. What can I do? —DAMP PILLOW

Dear Damp: I can't gift-wrap the Yuk and give him to you. And even if I could, why would you want him, knowing that he doesn't want you?

Tell him good riddance and not to concern himself with a winter replacement. A little dignity can go a long way.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teenagers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 30 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of his newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.
