"He's Playing . . . Hide Easter Egg"

Dear Ann Landers: What can I do about a husband who has had $30 worth of illegal parking tickets to pay in five weeks?

The worst of it is he hides the tickets in odd places and when I find them they are unpaid and overdue. When I read the riot act he says he's always been this way and he doesn't think he will ever be any different. He brags that he has never had an accident or been nicked for a moving violation.

I asked him how he got away with this before we married and he said he used to hide the tickets in funny places and when his mother found them, she paid them.

Please tell me what I can do. I didn't know I married a filbert.—SURPRISED

Dear Surprised: Junior is still playing "Hide the Easter Egg"—only he's using parking tickets. Tell him the hunt is over and from now on when you run into a ticket you're going to ignore it. And tell him, too, that when the cop appears with the summons there will be no place to hide.

Dear Ann Landers: No one I have talked to knows the answer to this. I hope you do.

I was mad at my boy friend and wrote him an angry letter. It was twelve pages of pure venom and I felt better after I got it down on paper. Then I walked to the mailbox and dropped it. I noted that the mail would be picked up the next morning at 7:20.

That night I couldn't sleep. I got to thinking about what I had written and decided I had been too hard on him. I also realized that this meant the end of our relationship and I wasn't ready for that.

The next morning I got up early and waited at the mailbox for the postman so I could retrieve my letter. Well, he refused to give it to me—said it was against the rules.

The boy friend got the letter and now we are through. I blame the postman for this. He COULD have given the letter back if he had wanted to, couldn't he? — MISERABLE NOW

Dear Miserable: It's against the law for the postman to "give a letter back." Once a letter is dropped into the box it becomes the responsibility of the postal authorities to effect delivery.

Let this be a lesson to you. It's good to get anger out on paper, but "mail" the letter in your drawer until you've had time to cool off and read it the following day.

Dear Ann Landers: I need a clearer head and a more objective eye than my own at the minute.

A very close friend of mine recently returned from an expensive (and expensive) trip to far off places. She brought me a cheap, hideous little knick-knack that I have seen gathering dust around her own home for years. I remember it well because it was so ugly. This "gift" was beautifully wrapped in fancy paper that bore the name of a well-known, exclusive foreign shop. What shall I say to her? You can bet I am—SEETHING

Dear Seething: Say "Thank you" and before you pop a blood vessel, consider the possibility that she liked the hideous little knick-knack so much she bought you one like it.

Del Pardo-Hammond Vows Read in Noon Rites

Wearing a wedding gown of white peau de soie with lace appliques entwined with tiny pearls, Miss Joyce Del Pardo walked down the aisle of the St. Catherine Labouré Catholic Church on the arm of her father at high noon on Aug. 12 to plight her marriage vows with Richard F. Hammond.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Hammond, of Hawthorne. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Del Pardo, 3111 W. 168th St., Torrance.

The gown was fashioned with a scalloped neckline, long pointed sleeves and a full skirt which cascaded into a long train. A pearl crown held the illusion veil and the bride carried a bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis.

Miss Sidney Cuellar was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Diane Lutz and Carole Brisse. They wore orange dresses with matching hats and carried yellow carnations.

Steve Ferguson was best man and ushers were Bill Fullerton and Jim Hammond.

Rev. John F. Healy officiated at the marriage service.

Returns to School

Miss Lynne Hyde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Hyde left Saturday for Stockton where she will resume her studies at the University of the Pacific.

The 215 guests were entertained at a reception at the Eagles Hall in Hawthorne.

The couple honeymooned in Mexico and are now at home at 5011 W. 133rd St., Hawthorne.

The bride was graduated from North High and her husband from Leusinger.

Club Will Make Harbor Cruise Today

Golf club, bags, spikes and score cards were left at home today as the members of the Alondra Women's Golf club take the SS Princess cruise around the Los Angeles Harbor.

Mrs. Carl Benson, president, and Mrs. Robert Ackerman of Torrance will be the co-captains for this merry crew which will return to the Pall Room of the Reef restaurant for dinner.

Among those changing from golf attire to cruise wear will be Messrs. and Mmes. Richard Roberson, Bob Benson, James McMillan, Lou Martin, Earl Brugman, William Parsons, Thomas Webb and Freeman Battershell.

Some fifty couples will make the trip.

Beautiful Californian Show Presented by The Broadway

Silhouettes are many and the colors are beautiful on the world's fashion fronts this fall.

In a champagne preview of fall's fabulous fashions in the Terrace Room at The Broadway Del Amo on Wednesday afternoon, hundreds of local women saw fashions by top American designers as well as European couture.

"The Beautiful Californian . . . and how to be one" was the theme for the presentation.

The Broadway's California color endorsements go to Curry, Spice, Nutmeg and Green Pepper.

These colors prevailed in the California-weight woollens for the new season. The "look of ease" is stressed in all the new cuts and designs in the mobile, blouson and all the important fashion stories in coats, suits and dresses.

Coat Story

The cape coat with the full flare made in spiced colored mohair and wool won acclaim. Shown with it was the high fashion fur hat. Fur was seen throughout the show in neckpieces, collar trims and even the muff.

The "princess" lines are also back making their bid for fall. This silhouette was shown in dresses and coats.

Costume suits, made in light weight woollens, came in for their share of fashion acclaim. Made in the popular new colors, they had blouses of matching or blending silks and brocades.

Something new in the ever-popular knits was the flared or godet skirts following the look-in-ease. An elegant new color, black pearl, was shown in a knitted flared skirt suit by Lilli Ann. Knits also took a bow in handsome one piece creations, some featuring the new dropped waistline.

In this season of "many looks," sportswear takes on a new, new look in beautiful paisley prints. The comfortable overblouse in colorful paisleys brightened the show, as did the colorful "stretch" pants which are making their debut this season.

The show hit a high note of elegance in its last phase with a showing of late day apparel including theatre suits, after-five and formal evening wear.

Elegant Wear

In theatre suits, there was a cognac velveteen suit with flared skirt touched off with a pink silk blouse. Another highlight in this showing was the white brocade sheath dress and the voluminous white brocade coat with tiny mink collar.

On stage next was a sparkling array of silver and gold beaded gowns by Sondheim of New York. These were in the short formal as well as ankle and floor length creations.

As a finale, the proverbial black and white of the season produced by European couturiers was shown in elegant gowns with white chiffon bodices and full fringed and ostrich skirts and regal creations in black chiffon, fringe and ostrich.

Accessories

With this parade of high fashions, The Broadway fashion coordinators stressed the selections of accessories showing hats from such designers as John Frederick, Mr. Arnold, Leslie James and others.

The new shoes, by Deliso Debs, feature the pronounced pointed or square toe and the stacked heel for daytime wear; silk and brocades for evening.

New fashions in jewelry also played an important part in the fashion array. It's a season of pins to be worn with suits and dresses. The sparkling drop earring was seen throughout the show of late day apparel.

ELEGANT LOOK . . . For evening, The Broadway Del Amo spotlighted an array of white chiffon. This creation features the chiffon blouson bodice and the all fringe skirt. Emphasized, too, are the long drop crystal earrings back in top fashion this season.

SOMETHING NEW . . . The "cape" look is prominent in the fashion picture this fall. It is emphasized here in the cape coat, in the new spice color in mohair and wool. With it is worn of the new fur hats high fashion this fall.
