JESSE DONALD AYCOCK

Funeral services for Jesse Donald Aycock, 54, of 1041 W. Jay St., will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m. at the Keystone Baptist Church under the direction of Halverson-Leavell Mortuary. Mr. Aycock, who died Thursday, was a native of Mississippi. A resident of the Torrance area for 10 years, he was past noble grand of the Blitheville, Ark., Odd Fellows Lodge.

Mr. Aycock is survived by his widow, Hazel; three sons, Donald Jr., Ronnie, and James; a daughter, Linda, of Indiana; his mother, Mrs. Lillie Aycock of Arkansas; three brothers, Doyle, Roy, and Paul; and six sisters, Emma, Willie, Imogene, Evelyn Dorothy, and Mildred.

Marymount

seen us several times, take it for granted we're going steady?"

"Why don't they take dancing lessons? One in a hundred knows his way around the floor."

"Why does the fraternity man with a foreign speedster and a big allowance think he is the catch of the season? We aren't dating his wallet or his car."

"They call us 'cold fish' if we don't swoon over their masculine charms, and they find it difficult to comprehend that our main interest is a pleasant evening of companionship without getting serious."

IN THE academic field, the Marymount girls have little patience with the men who are not taking full advantage of their educational opportunities, and whose ideals of music and art are the newest jazz combo or the latest pin-up photo of Brigitte Bardot.

The girls also take them to task for their clothes: "Why do they relish in being so sloppy? They have no style sense whatever, and could take lessons in proper apparel from their fathers. Yet they expect us to look like fashion plates."

One girl tersely commented, "Skinny-legged boys in Bermuda shorts — ugh!"

IN PERSONAL traits, quite a few observed, "They lack ambition and are always looking for the easy way out. They are afraid to be individuals and seek the security of the pack. They use the international situation as an excuse for being lazy."

One student, who made lengthy notes on the college lads' lack of good grooming, bluntly asked, "Why must their fingernails always be dirty?"

Most of the girls agreed on how to handle them: "Treat them like spoiled little boys. That's exactly what they are."

Advances Made In Navigation Set

A major breakthrough in performance and reliability of continuous-wave Doppler navigation equipment has been achieved by the Ryan IV, the new "second generation" navigation set developed by Ryan Electronics, O. S. Olds, vice president, Ryan Aeronautical Co., announced.

The Ryan IV, now undergoing flight tests, has demonstrated accuracies of better than 1/4 of 1 per cent in ground velocity, and better than 3/4 of 1 per cent in distance traveled.

In addition, Olds notes that the set reflects major advances in weight and size reduction, simplification of installation, versatility of application, and system integration.

The Ryan IV is being readied for production for the U.S. military services and NATO countries.
