Noted Torrance Artist Shows Work at Chapel

By BETTY SCHROEDER in many parts of the country.

Chapel Theatre has inaugurated another presentation in an effort to bring all manner of the arts to the Southwest area. Currently to be seen at the theater is Mrs. Dale Brent Sexton's colorful exhibit of paintings which opened last week in the auditorium of the Chapel Theatre.

Mrs. Sexton has won top awards in oil paintings at the Los Angeles City Hall Tower show; has been consistent prize winner in national and Los Angeles area shows; has had 10 one- and two-man shows in the past 10 years. Her paintings are in many public and private collections.

THE TITLES of the paintings now on exhibit at the theater include "Red Figure," a Tahitian figure against tropical background; "Fantasy," a luminous figure which appears and disappears in a scene of water and flowers; "Water Ways," trees and water; "Reeds and Rushes," fishermen, and others.

Mrs. Sexton is now in charge of the Cooperative Artist Work Shop at 27715 Silver Spur Road, Rolling Hills, and has been a resident in the Torrance area for many years, making her home at 507 Calle Mayor. This exhibit will continue for the duration of the performances of "Auntie Mame," currently playing at Chapel Theatre. It is the hope of Don Gish and Steve Sands, co-producers of the theater, that other artists will be contacted for future art work to be presented to Chapel Theatre audiences.

Adult Classes Start Feb. 5

With North High School as the study center, University of California Extension will offer Torrance adults some 50 classes this spring, according to Leonard Dalton, assistant principal of the high school and university extension representatives for the area. Instruction begins during the week of Feb. 5.

Courses will range from art, business administration and economics to engineering and geography. The largest local group will be in the field of education. Teacher's courses include psychological foundations of education, educational statistics, the education of exceptional children, counseling and guidance for the handicapped, and audio-visual media of instruction, among many others.

PLANS ARE being made for a special series of lectures on "World Arts and Culture: the Orient" and another on "The Southern California Scene: Coastal Areas."

Engineering Extension at UCLA lists seven courses at North High School, including study in logical design of digital computing machinery and systems and electronics in engineering.

North High School is located at 3620 W. 182nd St.

Advance registration and information bulletins listing complete information concerning Torrance courses as well as those in nearby communities are now available on request to offices of University Extension (Bradshaw 2-6161, station 721) at UCLA, Los Angeles.

500 TO ATTEND Foundation, USC Plan Conference On Birth Defects

A unique medical conference on birth defects will put heavy stress on abnormalities and diseases caused by out-of-kilter body chemistry, largely determined by heredity.

Some 500 physicians from the U.S., Canada and Mexico will get a three-day briefing on these and other birth defect problems at the first Inter-American Conference on Congenital Defects at the Statler-Hilton and the Los Angeles County General Hospital Jan. 22-24.

The National Foundation-March of Dimes will co-sponsor the conference with the University of Southern California.

BIRTH DEFECTS affect at least 250,000 infants a year in the United States and are responsible for 34,000 annual newborn and stillborn deaths, according to Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation.

"In recent years, discoveries concerning so-called in-born errors of metabolism and how the lack (or excess) of a key chemical can cause serious and often fatal disease have skyrocketed," O'Connor said.

"The field is one of the most exciting and promising areas in medical research today." The conference will approach congenital defects in an unusual way, he said. Basic research scientists will discuss the problems defect by defect, and then will sit as a panel to review presentations of actual patients with the same defects and consider questions of care and treatment.

AMONG SCIENTISTS who will present papers on basic aspects of congenital defects are two Nobel prize winners—Dr. Linus Pauling of Caltech and Dr. Edward L. Tatum of the Rockefeller Institute.

Principal speaker at the Conference banquet Jan. 23 will be Arthur S. Flemming, former secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and now president of the University of Oregon.

"Rapid advances have taken some of the mystery out of the origin of dozens of diseases and defects," O'Connor said.

"TODAY we know or strongly suspect that such diseases as cystic fibrosis, muscular dystrophy, diabetes mellitus, gout, some forms of mongolism, cretinism, sickle cell anemia, and many abnormalities of blood, kidneys and other organs are caused by hereditary defects in body chemistry," he said.

He referred particularly to phenylketonuria and galactosemia, two metabolic diseases for which scientists have recently developed diets that prevent mental retardation and other serious consequences if started early enough.

THE BIGGEST thing in medical research in 1962 is the study of genes, chromosomes, the "code of life" and how we come to be what we are from conception to death, through sickness and health.

"Research on metabolic diseases is a tremendously important part of all this—and basic research in the whole area is a major part of The National Foundation-March of Dimes program," he said.

Agency Puts Torrance Man In New Post

Torrance resident Michael Powers has been elevated to the post of division manager for the Albert L. Jason agency of the Prudential Insurance Co., it was announced today.

Entering his eighth year with Prudential, Powers was promoted from the level of special agent.

A native of New York, N.Y., he attended schools in that city and entered into the extra-curricular activities of glee club, plays, and operettas, evincing a steadily increasing interest in voice and music.

Violin Student to Play in Moscow

George A. Sidoroff, 23, graduate violin student in Mount St. Mary's College's coeducational "Gifted Music Program," has been chosen to perform in the second International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow during April.

Before attending Mount St. Mary's, Sidoroff, who lives in Brentwood, studied at the Los Angeles Conservatory of Music. There he won a nationwide scholarship grant, having played with Joseph Sziget in the finals.

In the service Sidoroff was first place winner in the Southeastern Conference Variety Contest and later earned top prize in the 1954 Air Force "Tops in Blue" contest which toured the world.
