

'She's Candidate

For SKUNK Award'
Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of a girl who would telephone a friend and get her to talk about some one in a most uncomplimentary manner when all the time that someone who was being talked about is listening in on the extension telephone in the first person's house?

Isn't this about the lowest trick you ever heard of in your whole life. I was trapped into such a situation and I would like to have a comment from you.

—VICTIMIZED

Dear Victimized: Yes, this is indeed a shabby trick but it should teach you a lesson. Never say anything about anyone on the telephone (or anyplace else, for that matter) that you would not say to that person's face.

And as for the cat who framed you, she's a promis-

And as for the cat who framed you, she's a promising candidate for the All American Skunk Award (Female Division).

Dear Ann Landers: You will never print my letter be-cause nobody wants to face the truth about the subject.

You often use a sentence that makes me laugh. I quote: "The law says a man must support his wife and children." Well, I have news for you—the law may say so, but in this state it's just a joke.

I speak from experience, and here's what its like. The support department at the State's Attorney's office takes your name and all the information. They tell you to wait three months. You wait. Then you appear again and you are told they are trying to contact him. You wait anto contact him. You want another three months. After that they tell you he is not at the address you gave them. So you phone and find he is there and has been all along. You go back to the State's

You go back to the State's Attorney's office. They say they'll look into it. In three months they call and say "He hasn't any money. Do you want to press charges for non-support and have him put in jail?"

What good is he in jail? So you say "Skip it."

My advice to women with children is this: Stick it out until the kids are old enough to stand on their own feet. Once a man leaves, your chances for getting support money are mighty slim.—
BEEN THROUGH IT

Dear Been: Some states

Dear Been: Some states are tougher on scoundrels than others. I'm in favor of clobbering these low-lifes who try to run out on their responsibilities, Regardless of the law, your last paragraph makes a lot of sense if a man is short on integrity.

Dear Set: You were both out of order. With temperatures such as yours, I can think of 52 good reasons why you and your husband should not play cards together. Throw in the deck permanently.
