

Freeway Fencing Helps, Says Supervisor Hahn

Bulges in the median dividers along the Harbor Freeway stand as mute evidence of lives saved and the prevention of head-on collisions, Supervisor Kenneth Hahn pointed out yesterday.

Hahn, who led a five-year campaign for the installation of the safety fencing, noted that each portion of damaged fence represents a car which would have jumped the center divider and probably crashed into opposing traffic.

"Last week I counted 33 places on the Harbor Freeway between the interchange and 190th Street where an automobile had smashed into the fence," Hahn said.

The supervisor has made several spot checks of the effectiveness of the fence since it was installed in mid-May. "The fact that the fence has to be mended almost daily shows that it is serving a life-saving purpose," he said.

HE CITED statistics of tests conducted by the State Highway Department which showed that fatal accidents are almost eliminated from head-on collisions because of the safety fencing. On two test checks—one on the Santa Ana Freeway and the other on the Nimmitz Freeway in Oakland—six-mile installations of safety fencing were closely monitored by state officials.

In the year prior to the test strips' installation, there were 49 cross-median accidents, eight of which were fatal. In the year following the installation, there were only two cross-median accidents and one fatality.

BOTH OF THE latter accidents were attributed to unusual conditions in which cars "jumped" the freeway barrier.

Hahn pointed out that while the repair of the freeway fence takes constant maintenance, the state is able to recover approximately 70 per cent of the repair costs from the involved motorist's insurance.

FOOD IS A BARGAIN

...IN THE U.S.A.
 ...AT MARKET BASKET

Americans enjoy a higher standard of living—including eating—than ever before. And food costs a smaller part of our pay—about 20%, compared to 40% of a Frenchman's pay, and 56% of a Russian's. (If we wanted to eat the same as we did before 1940, our food would cost only 16%!) We at Market Basket are really proud of the food industry and our own part in it. We constantly do our best to bring you good food at the lowest possible prices. Try us this weekend and see for yourself... that food is a bargain.
