

You Are Raising Admirable Daughter

Dear Ann Landers: This is a delicate problem and I need to know how to handle it— or should it be handled at all?

Our 12-year-old daughter is our 12-year-old daugnter is a born do-gooder — always looking for someone to help. Yesterday Mary came home from school and told me about a new girl in her room who is very nice. The new girl's other brings her to school father brings her to school every morning in a beat-up truck. Mary said, "Her Daddy wears overalls so I know he doesn't work in an office or anything like that."

The new girl has very bad teeth. Even the ones in front are decayed. When she smiles she always puts her hand up to her mouth which indicates she is self conscious about it.

My husband is a dentist.

Mary has asked her dad if he Mary has asked her dad it he will fix the girl's teeth without pay. My husband said he would. Now, how do we go about it? Should I call the girl's mother? Should my daughter ask the girl directly? Or should we not get involved?—MARY'S MOTHER

Dear Mother: Speak to the teacher. Ask her to contact the new girl's mother and give her the information. The child need not know it's "a gift." And, incidentally, you are raising an admirable daughter.

Dear Ann Landers: My hus-band is a photo-nut. He spends hundreds of dollars on equipment, chemicals, paper, film and so on. His otos are terrific, too.

My beef is this: At every family gathering (and we are a mighty gathering family) he shoots dozens of pictures. Then he slaves for hours making prints. The relatives can well afford to pay 50 cents apiece for these wonderful 5x7 and 8x10 pictures. But my hard-headed husband says, "No, I wouldn't think of charging them. I do this for fun."

Fun, my eye. He does it with money that could be better spent buying nicer clothing for his family or fixing up our house. Why should he be so balky about asking the relatives to pay for prints? I think he is a sucker.
