

Your YMCA Is Building for the Future

rance YMCA conducts one of the nation's largest camping programs for its 3,000 families and more than 6,000 boys and girls who are regularly involved in YMCA activities.

SUMMER FUN . . . YMCA-sponsored outings give plenty of time for recreation such as swimming shown here. In addition to such activities, the YMCA programs include inspirational study, and programs designed to enrich the lives of those young Americans joining in YMCA activities. Leadership training is one of the major benefits of YMCA programs.

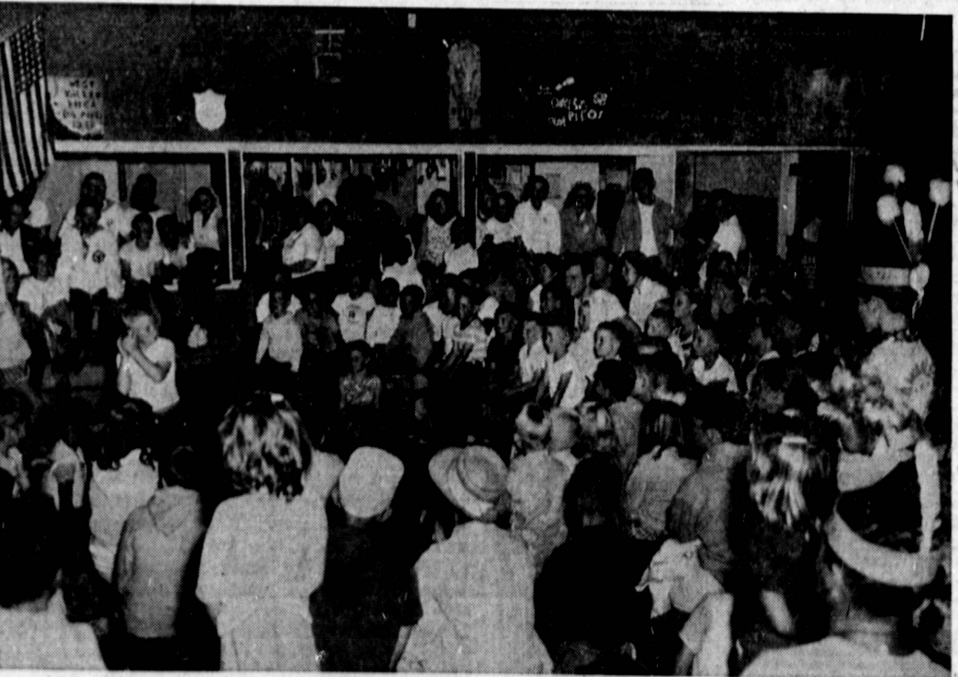

BUSY HANDS . . . The old adage about "idle hands . . ." doesn't apply when Torrance youngsters report to one of the many YMCA craft classes, either at the local YMCA headquarters or during one of the two dozen camping sessions each Summer. Here younger members of the Y get some first hand instruction in one of the many crafts classes offered during the year.

READY TO GO . . . The parking area adjacent to the YMCA building at 2080 Washington Ave. near Arlington Avenue and Plaza Del Amo looks like the rush hour at Union Station as families gather with baggage in hand to leave for one of the summer camps. Scenes like this are repeated weekly during the summer months, and at other times during the year.

PARTY TIME . . . The rafters echo the happy voices of young Torrance area residents as they gather for one of the "fun times" sponsored by the Torrance YMCA. Such affairs are part of the continuing, daily programs sponsored by the YMCA for local youth, financed by local funds only.

DADS AND LADS . . . Much of the activity sponsored by the Torrance YMCA puts emphasis on family programs, including many programs designed to include father and son, such as the Y-Indian Guide organizations. Here several fathers and their sons enjoy a campfire.
