Dear View: She sounds like a lovely girl who was never taught the importance of good grooming.

The most tactful person in the office (and preferably an older woman) should tell her gently and in private that her shortcuts in grooming are destroying much of her charm.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a girl 22 and I'm about to be engaged. Chet is still in college. He comes from a well-to-do family and works summers for his dad. Chet has saved some money toward marriage because I told him I wouldn't marry him unless he proved he could save. His folks have spoiled him rotten.

Now he wants to give me a big diamond ring which belonged to his grandmother. I don't want his grandmother's ring. I'd rather have a single pearl which he paid for himself.

Chet says I'm out of my skull and mother agrees with him. What shall I do? —PLAIN JAIN

Dear Jain: At a time when so many young girls are looking for men with the aid of a Geiger counter it's downright refreshing to hear from a gal who has uncommon common sense about money and diamonds. Tell Chet you appreciate the sentiment attached to an heirloom but you are not marrying his grandfather and you'd prefer a single pearl.

A Swiss bank sent us $224,000 the other day.

You can judge a savings and loan association by the company it keeps. Take Great Western Savings. Our list of customers reads like a Who's Who in the World of Finance: corporate treasurers and controllers, bankers, investment counselors, real estate brokers, and financiers. But a most recent addition to our list, a Swiss bank, deserves special mention. Of course, the first question that comes to mind is, "Why?" Why should a Swiss bank, an institution known the world over as a symbol of safety and stability, open a savings account with a Los Angeles savings and loan association? There are three main reasons: Our high rate of interest, which is currently 4.8% a year. Our safety. And the availability of funds. Now if you guessed that much, you may still be wondering why a Swiss bank should choose Great Western Savings from among the many associations available to them.

First, because of our reputation. It's international. We have savers in all 50 states and 70 foreign countries. (Banks in England, France and Belgium also have accounts with us.) Then because of our size and strength. Our assets exceed $600,000,000. And we're a member of the Great Western Financial Group, the first savings and loan organization ever to top one billion dollars in assets. And because of our record. It's perfect. We've always answered withdrawal requests promptly. In full. Plus interest. Even with all this, we still feel that the selection of Great Western Savings by a Swiss bank is an extraordinary vote of confidence. It's also a tribute to the convenience we provide. Which brings up another point. If a Swiss bank finds it easy to send their money half-way around the world, wouldn't it be even easier to send yours half-way across town? We'll pay the postage. Both ways.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

The development of a baby's vision is a gradual thing just as all phases of physical and mental development. At birth, he can distinguish only light and dark and his eyes work independently. But along about 3 months of age eye muscles are sufficiently developed to focus both eyes at the same time. By this time, too, vision sharpens and he begins to distinguish shapes, responds happily to familiar faces and bright-colored objects.

Sight-seeing strategy. Eye muscles need exercise to develop. You can encourage baby to exercise his eyes by providing things that will help him on his sight-seeing excursions. A gently swaying mobile... bright-colored or glint 'n' glitter. A gay toy or two attached to his crib... a balloon tied to playpen bars. And, if you place the crib where he can follow your comings and goings, he'll get plenty of happy eye-fills.

Eye-appeal for a baby meal. We all know that babies react favorably to pleasing flavors but little appetites respond to pleasing colors, too. Gerber Strained Egg Yolks have the sunniest color that ever lighted up a baby's eye. Add to this a creamy, creamy texture and a delicious fresh-egg flavor and you've a delicacy fit for a little prince or princess. High in vitamin A, rich in iron and a good source of protein, Gerber Egg Yolks offer excellent nutritional benefits.

Juicy story with nutritional overtones. Gerber Strained Fruit Juices offer sipping pleasure beyond measure and all the vitamin C your baby needs. (One can of any Gerber Juice will provide over 100% of the recommended daily dietary allowance for infants.) Nine delightful varieties—all delicate in flavor and carefully pasteurized for baby's protection. Has your baby tried the two newest Gerber offerings: Mixed Fruit Juice and Prune-Orange?
