Protective Legislation For Deer Herds Studied

By VINCENT THOMAS
Assemblyman, 68th District
California's 160,000 hunters all are concerned with the need for increasing our state's deer population to meet the demands of our steadily rising number of hunters. Continued shrinking of hunting areas, food supply, and possible over-hunting are all factors in the problem that require study and action if the state is to maintain its top position in deer hunting.

Deer herds are no respecters of state lines, so one important element in the situation is the preservation of those which migrate from one state to another within the year. Several such herds move irregularly between California, Oregon and Nevada. Depending on the times of their movements, they may be protected by the laws and regulations of any one of the three states during open seasons. Differences in these legal controls may influence herd size even more than natural factors.

creating a commission to regulate the migrating deer herds which move between California and Oregon and California and Nevada. It was brought out that such a committee would require a formal interstate compact, with appropriate action by the state legislatures, and eventual approval by Congress. It was said this could be a lengthy process.

The committee was also reminded that with respect to specific migratory deer herds, joint study and action had begun as far back as 1945. At that time a California-Oregon committee was set up, to deal with problems of a large herd of mule deer which ordinarily winter in northeast California, and summer in southern Oregon. Later a similar group was established for a California-Nevada herd. In view of these two active organizations, question was raised as to the need for the proposed commission.

LEGISLATION relating to deer hunting was prominent during our 1963 regular session. The bill to continue power of the Fish and Game Commission to set dates for open seasons in various districts, enactment of which was needed to extend the existing pattern, proved unexpectedly controversial, and was finally dropped. It was finally passed in a limited form at the special session. Also introduced, but referred to interim study, was an Assembly resolution calling for investigation of the need for an interstate deer herd commission.

The Assembly Fish and Game Committee recently held hearings on this resolution in Yreka, and set something of a precedent by also meeting with a joint committee of the Oregon Legislature on the subject in Klamath Falls. Sportsmen, game management experts, forest officials, and cattlemen from both states participated in the proceedings.

AS TO ALLEGATIONS that the mule deer herd had been reduced below a reasonable size by over-hunting, it was pointed out that all of the herd does not migrate each year, and that a sizeable portion of it stayed in Oregon all during the last season. All indications for this season are that the total take of deer by hunters in the California area will approximate normal.

Deer hunting is certainly an important recreation in all three states, as well as economically valuable. The interim study by the committee may develop some basic facts to help improve cooperation between them in protecting a great natural resource.

THE RESOLUTION calls for a study of the desirability of

Garden Checklist

1. Watch for aphids on chrysanthemums and spray to keep plants healthy at the first sign of them.
2. Gladiolus should be lifted as the tops turn brown. Remove the stalks about an inch above the corms and store the latter in a cool dry place.
3. Rake up leaves as they fall and remove spent annuals. It's none too early to start the fall clean up.
4. Plant cineraria now for late winter or spring bloom. You can try them from seed if you're handy that way.
5. Plant cyclamen now for winter bloom. You can start with seedling plants from flats or with pot grown beauties already in bloom.

New Discovery Now Makes It Possible To Shrink And Heal Hemorrhoids Without Surgery

Stops Itch—Relieves Pain In Minutes

New York, N. Y. (Special): A world-famous institute has discovered a new substance which has the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids without surgery. The sufferer first notices almost unbelievable relief in minutes from itching, burning and pain. Then this substance speeds up healing of the injured tissues all while it quickly reduces painful swelling.

Tests conducted under a doctor's observations proved this so—even in cases of 10 to 20 years' standing. The secret is the new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—now offered in both ointment or suppository form called Preparation H®.

In addition to actually shrinking piles—Preparation H lubricates and makes bowel movements less painful. It helps to prevent infection (a principal cause of hemorrhoids).

Only Preparation H contains this magic new substance which quickly helps heal injured cells back to normal and stimulates regrowth of healthy tissue again. Just ask for Preparation H Ointment or Preparation H Suppositories (easier to use away from home). Available at all drug counters.
