More than half the countries of the world live under a partial or complete black-out of news, through censorship. The people of these countries have lost a guiding light to freedom — the complete, true knowledge of all that is happening in the world.
And the people of our nation want not only accurate news, but all of the news. The proof: Since 1920, during a period which introduced both radio and television, newspaper sales more than doubled — every day over 60 million copies of 1,800 newspapers are circulated each day. That's more copies than the number of families in our nation.
To keep up with this demand for news, the newspaper industry has been continually working to improve their service — by introducing the most up-to-date communications and production methods.
So, while most of the world lives in darkness, our newspapers serve as a light of freedom, making a big difference in people's lives.
