Charges Hurlled At State Over Medical Plans

By VINCENT THOMAS
Assemblyman, 68th District.

Medical care for the aged, a controversial topic in our national legislative halls, has developed considerable heat in our California law-making circles. Accusations have been hurled that our state administration of the existing medical assistance to the aged system doesn't conform to federal law under which about half of the funds are supplied. It is also alleged that state price-fixing for care of the aged in nursing homes or hospitals has depressed rates so far as to threaten private institutions with eventual extinction.

The Senate Fact-Finding Committee on Labor and Welfare recently held the first of several hearings on these charges. A spokesman for the Legislative Analyst presented a factual statement as to applicable federal and state laws, and operations under them. Representatives of the Departments of Social Welfare, Finance, and Mental Hygiene gave their viewpoints. Nursing home spokesmen made clear their objections to the current situation as to rates.

first negotiated rates for care with private nursing homes. Later, the Department of Social Welfare was given authority to fix uniform rates, and did so. In the 1963 session, a law was enacted to improve the program. In it, the power to fix rates for hospital or nursing home care was given to the Department of Finance. Basing its action on a cost survey much criticized by hospital and nursing home operators, the Department adopted a new lower schedule of rates, which raised the present storm of controversy. The 800 nursing homes in the state, half of whose 30,000 beds are occupied by recipients of care under the program, bitterly protest that the new rates do not begin to meet their actual costs, so may force them out of the program.

Complaint was also made to the Committee that the three departments involved, Finance, Social Welfare and Public Health (which licenses all hospitals) do not coordinate their action on the program.

Cast Named For 'Mouse That Roared'

Judy Allen has been selected to play the role of Gloriana in "The Mouse That Roared" a comedy satirizing American society, to be presented by the senior class at Torrance High School.

Charles Slater, faculty advisor to the cast, also announced other roles. Cynthia Wentz, Phyllis Tatum, Susan Wichert, and Jane Allen will play Mary, Jane, Fran, and Pam. Virginia Labeay was cast as Ann.

Others in the play include Valerie Gustavson, Nancy Cushman, Sheri Taylor, Judi Smenner, Toni Del Rosso, Eleanor Westfall, and Pat Adams. Diane Battershell, Donna Easley, Barbara McGuire, Marian Denler, Richard Tiernan, Larry Carpenter, Gary Baker, Jim Miller, Mike Hubbert, Dennis Pierce, Terry O'Halloran, Jeff Carpenter, Mark Carpenter, Roger Webb, Tom Walls, and Art Felix will also have featured roles.

Rehearsals for the play will begin at once, according to Slater.

Marine Pfc. Glenn T. Purdy, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Purdy of 2975 W. Carson St., and Marine Corporal Larry Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mansel J. Sullivan of 1714 W. 234th St., are members of the Third Battalion, Third Marine Regiment, Third Marine Division which is embarked aboard amphibious ships of the Seventh Fleet in the Far East.
