GET ACTION IN A CLASSIFIED AD

I know a woman of 65 who isn't afraid to dress with style and dash. Consequently when I dine or dance with her I note the looks of admiration from men and the daggers of jealousy in the eyes of women much younger than she who look so drab in comparison.

Age should never be a barrier to daring in style. "To hell with convention" should be your everlasting motto. When you reach the 60s you should be tired of convention. Now is the time to live! Throw caution to the winds!

Too many of you at that age buy one or possibly two dresses that you like to call "my for-mals." But Mon Dieu! How I shudder.

I saw a mob of women, all in the 60-ish bracket, entering some sort of lodge one evening. Each of you wore some horror that you must have thought passed as an evening gown, but what they actually passed for, even I wouldn't dare say.

In your overloaded tulle, your

wrong colors, your inferior materials dragging the dust from the curbs, you entered your temple two by two like dejected chickens going to a plucking ma-chine. But chickens at least look more appetizing after being plucked than you wearing those hystericals. I thought out loud to myself, "This after all could be the hideout of the International Associa-tion of Witches." Except that none of you flew in.

It does cost a little more to be fashionably daring, but the results are worth far more, too. Before you buy, study fashion trends. Don't buy something because you think it will last for-

Whether you choose a cocktail or dinner dress, make up your mind before buying what type of person you are or want to be. And don't judge a dress by your own age; good fashion is good Invite a young man or two to shop with you, never a neighbor or lodge member. If they have any daring-which most don'tthey'll reserve it for themselves.

Dare to be different in every fashion sense. Lately the head-lines have proved that head-hunters in their 60s and 80s are doing right well for themselves, snatching eligibles practically right out of the cradle.

Surely it must be their chic that is the magnet. And in your 60s that's about all you'll have to offer. So offer it.
