Gas Companies Awarded Special Certificates

Southern California and Southern Counties Gas Co. are among the 14 utilities in the nation who have been honored for their work in helping maintain the high quality and dependability of gas appliances.

The two local companies, who distribute natural gas throughout most of southern California, recently were presented with certificates by the American Gas Assn. for participation in the National Appliance Field Observation Program.

AGAs Laboratories in Cleveland, where it is passed along to manufacturers.

"THIS continuous cooperative effort on the part of utilities and manufacturers to improve their products is one of the reasons for the overwhelming popularity of gas appliances in Balanced Power homes here," Babbe said.

Many refinements in gas appliances have been brought about by the national program in recent years, Babbe pointed out. Results of the program can be seen in the ever-increasing sales of gas appliances, both locally and nationally, he said.

The National Appliance Field Observation Program is an outgrowth of a system originated shortly after the close of World War II by the local gas companies. It became a national effort during the mid-1950's, Babbe said.

WHAT'S DOING

R. S. Pyle, your Telephone Manager in Torrance

I recently learned that telephone research technicians x-ray phone poles to find out how to make them last longer. Each of these poles has been treated with fungus-killing preservative and the x-rays are used on sample borings to show how well the preservative is working. Research like this helps us lengthen pole life and helps hold down the cost of your telephone service.

A patio extension telephone lets you make or take calls outdoors with the same convenience as an inside phone.

In contrast to the modern use of x-rays I just mentioned, some technicians at Western Electric (the manufacturing arm of the Bell System), practice an ancient art. These experts are glass blowers who turn out special glass parts and electron tubes that can't be mass produced. These parts are used in the development and manufacture of new telephone equipment. It just goes to show that it takes all types of skills to keep improving your telephone service.
