

MODEL KITCHEN . . . Spectacular new kitchen remodeling center has been constructed in the lobby of the Southern California Gas Co. at 158 So. La Brea Ave., Inglewood. In displaying new gas appliances and building concepts, the unique model kitchen will serve as an "idea center" for area homemakers and builders who are remodeling or building new homes.

New 'Green Kitchen' Shows the Women How

Completion of a spectacular kitchen remodeling center in the lobby of the Southern California Gas Co. at 158 S. La Brea Ave., Inglewood, was announced by G. M. Babbe, manager of the firm's Southwest division.

In making the announcement, Babbe stated that the center is a strikingly different gas display kitchen planned to serve as an "idea center" for modern homemakers who are remodeling older kitchens or building new ones. It is expected that the new culinary center will be open for public inspection later this month.

DESIGNED by the gas company's kitchen planning staff, the Balanced Power home-making center has been named "La Cocina Verde," or "The Green Kitchen," because of its color scheme and a unique linking of indoor and outdoor living. The clean, uncluttered lines of "La Cocina Verde" present a curved island cooking center complemented by a complete line of gas appliances built into ceramic tile and red birch cabinetry.

Professional Group Honors Secretary

Mrs. June Baggett, secretary to North High School principal, Dr. Richard Guengerich, was recently informed by the National Assn. Educational Secretaries that her application for Professionals Standards Program Certificate was evaluated and met all the requirements for a Grade VI Optional Professional Standards Program Certificate.

She has attained this honor by a combination of tests, statements of competency, completing 60 semester hours of college work, experience on the job, and membership service of at least three years in the organization.

This is a voluntary program established by the members to measure the quality of their individual services as educational secretaries. It is another step forward in meeting the identifying criteria of a professional group which has its own association and unified leadership.

Its members strive continually to improve their competence. Areas in which the tests are given include accounting, business machines, transcription, typewriting, American government, English, and general education.

The certificate will be presented at the annual convention in Newark, Delaware, on July 27. Mrs. Baggett has held many offices, including president of the local chapter of the organization.

kitchen area is gas air conditioned for visitors comfort. Babbe pointed out that an attractive part of the center is the outdoor living area adjacent to the kitchen. Beautifully landscaped, this gracious patio area is equipped with Char-Glo barbecue and is softly lighted by a combination gas light and fountain.

The division manager explained that the entire display will provide a central location where local homeowners and builders may borrow new ideas suitable for their own homes and building projects.

College Names New News Chief

Bob Wells has been named manager of the news and publications bureau at Long Beach State College. Wells succeeds Jim Melton, who resigned recently.

A former newspaperman and the author of numerous magazine articles, Wells will head the college's public information section and manage the publications office.
