

COUNT MARCO SAYS

Do You Drive Him To Drink?

A male fan writes me that he puts training a dog in the same category as teaching a woman to respect her husband.

Says he: "There is a point that husbands don't seem to understand. It is that a man must make a woman bow to him or he cannot make her obey except when she wishes to."

"That word 'obey' in the marriage ceremony means also to have respect for the husband's wishes."

"A man who loves a dog beats that dog only to get respect. He should first get respect by having respect for himself. Then others will show decent behavior towards him."

Once a dog is taught respect, it will behave. You can teach it anything. If a woman can learn this same trick she can hold any man."

Mr. P.

Now here is a woman's solution to the problem of respect. What a switch she makes midway in her letter—which is as shocking as the pink of the stationery on which she writes.

"All these confused housewives who write to you complaining about their husbands!

"I am convinced that I have the right formula for a happy marriage: Keep my mouth shut and do as my husband wishes. Right or wrong, go along, agreeing with him."

"If more of these discontented housewives would practice this there would be fewer arguments in the home and fewer divorces."

(HERE'S THE SWITCH.)

"If your husband drinks too much and you see you cannot change him, accept it. Let him drink at home. All he wants to drink. Just wait for the day he suffers a heart attack and then you will be free. Don't drink with him; you'll lose your looks."

"Cherish each moment you have to yourself and do a lot of reading to improve your mind. Keep yourself alert for the time he is gone, as you will have a whole new life. It has been proven that we women outlive men by 10 to 15 years."

—Mrs. I. Know

Actually, this woman had the right idea to begin with but lost herself somewhere. If you keep your mouth shut at all times, right or wrong, he won't be driven to drink. Most men hit the bottle to shut out the din of a shrew's tongue.

How's your tongue? And how's your respect?

Garden Checklist

1. Make use of all the blooms this time of year and lavishly decorate your home with cut flower arrangements. Now you can enjoy these garden prizes both indoors and out.

2. To determine if you are watering in sufficient amounts, insert a sharp stick or other implement into the ground. If it doesn't show moisture to a depth of three to four inches, additional watering is needed.

3. Just arrived! Cushioned mums are now available in gallon cans at your local nursery. For a quick lift of color, buy these delicate plants now.

4. Dampen the soil or walks with water around your begonias and fuchias on hot days. This raises the humidity and helps cool the soil around them. A fine spray applied directly on the plants is, of course, the best arrangement.

5. Prepare the soil and dig a trench for sweet peas. You will be planting them soon.
