Pueblo Catholic Youth Center to Be Reopened

The Catholic Youth Organization Pueblo Center has been reopened at 2314 203rd St., here under the supervision of Tony Tinajero, it was announced by Rev. John J. Birch, CYO director. Tinajero formerly assisted Father Birch in the CYO of El Paso, Texas, where he was highly commended for his work. Preliminary meetings have been held with people of the community, Rev. Anthony Cambra of adjoining St. Joseph Chapel and Torrance city officials with regard to getting a full schedule under way. Tinajero reports that he has found clergy, officials and citizens of the area most cooperative and enthusiastic. Members of the A.C.J.M., Mexican Catholic Youth Association, of Los Angeles attended Mass and Communion in a body at St. Joseph Chapel on Sunday (4/15) in an effort to help stimulate interest in the center. Although no regular program is being offered, the center is open daily from 4 to 9 p.m. during the period of redecoration and while equipment is being acquired. The phone number is Torrance 2272.

Local Man Gets Home on The 'Big Mo'

Home with the "Big Mo," after seeing more than five months of tough shore battery attacks along the east Korean Coast, is George W. Johnston, 28, of 17231 Della avenue, Torrance. Johnston, an electronics technician first class with the United States Navy, arrived at Long Beach Thursday morning with the U.S.S. Missouri to be greeted by his wife, Jane, and 23 month old son, Stephen. PEARL HARBOR VETERAN A six-year veteran of World War II, Johnston was stationed at Pearl Harbor on that fateful day of December 7, 1941, when it was turned into a flaming mass of ships and boiling water as the result of the Japanese attack. Called back into the active naval duty August, 1950, Johnston boarded the U.S.S. Missouri during December of last year at Yokosuka, Japan, and has been with her during the many shore bombardments she has executed since. Operating along the east coast of Korea, Johnston mentioned Wonsan and Chonjin as some of the more remembered bombardments. He said that one of the things at his Torrance home he still can't quite get accustomed to is the noiseless atmosphere. "Aboard the big Mo," he said, "the heavy shore bombardment was kept up day and night. You sort of got used to that continual pounding." The reaction of most of the men aboard the floating city upon hearing that they were heading back for the States was that "it was just too good to be true." The men weren't actually told that they were on the way home until they reached Pearl Harbor. Upon seeing the hundreds of people line up at the Long Beach pier to meet the returning battleship with its 2000 war weary Korean veterans aboard, Johnston said that the reaction of most of the men was a mixture of surprise and exulted pride. "We didn't figure on anything like that. I've never seen so many people lined up just to watch a ship come in," reported Johnston. WATCHED LANDING ON TV Something that amused the men on the ship was watching themselves on television. Johnston said that the men were watching the televising of the landing of the battleship on the television set aboard the Missouri. Still befuddled about the immense proportions of the "big Mo," which has a capacity of 3500 men, Johnston confessed that he still didn't know too much of the ship "It's like a city. It's easy for anyone to get lost aboard her," he said. On a 17-day leave, as are 399 of his mates, Johnston is to meet the U.S.S. Missouri at Norfolk, Virginia, on April 30. He expects to leave the west coast April 28. When he boards the ship again in Virginia, another group of 400 men will be given shore leave. Entering the navy for the first time in 1940, Johnston served on destroyers during most of his service in World War II. He was discharged December of 1946 and worked for a telephone company in Los Angeles until recalled to service last year. Johnston is a veteran of the Pearl Harbor, Coral Sea and Midway Island battles of the World War II.

HOMEcoming — Mrs. George Johnston, of 17231 Della ave., Torrance, greets her husband just landed on U.S. soil. Johnston returned home last Thursday aboard the U.S.S. Missouri when it came to port at the Long Beach harbor. The World War II veteran has served on the "BIG MO" during the last five months and has seen much Korean battle aboard her.

Red Cross Sends Out SOS Signal for Aid

The American Red Cross, which has brought so much comfort and assistance to millions in times of disaster, is itself in distress, according to Mrs. Gladys Weston, Torrance Red Cross fund chairman. Commenting on the failure of the Los Angeles area residents to support the present Red Cross campaign, the chairman warned that the mercy organizations "may be forced to refuse financial aid to GI hardship cases, and even turn its back on requests for life-saving whole blood and plasma." Earlier this week, Los Angeles Campaign Chief Earle M. Jorgensen said that residents of Los Angeles and other key metropolitan centers in general "apparently do not realize the seriousness of the plod-plod progress of the 1951 campaign." Jorgensen said that this year's Red Cross fund goal cannot afford "to be one dime short of its mark." As in other war years, he said, there is no "cushion" set up in these goals, and "every penny" has to be collected. "Through World War II and in the year following V-J day, Los Angeles oversubscribed goals of four, five, and six millions, and the same need prevails today," Jorgensen said. "There has been no let-up in the demand for Red Cross services here at home or overseas, and American casualties in Korea—all needing Red Cross-collected whole blood and plasma—have mounted to a point where they exceed a full year of World War II combat." Jorgensen urged house-to-house canvassers in the field to "adequately cover assigned territories and give all residents of this area the opportunity to back the Red Cross fund campaign."

P. V. College to Present 'Androcles and the Lion'
George Bernard Shaw's comedy "Androcles and the Lion" will be presented by Palos Verdes College on May 3, 4, and 5 in the Barn Theater on campus. As with all of Shaw's dramas, this play is filled with purposeful laughter. The play is set in the days of the Roman Empire, when the most popular spectator sport was that of watching Christians being eaten by lions and slain by gladiators. The play is circus-like in spirit, with serious undertones. "Androcles and the Lion" is under the direction of Clayton Garrison. The costumes and sets are being executed by Arthur Adair. Anne Forrante is the student manager. The title roles will be acted by David Addington as Androcles, and Louise Lubbe as the lion. Other members of the cast are Nancy McCarthy as Megaera, Howard Schulte as the Centurian, Greayer Mansfield-Jones as the Captain, Margaret Duthie and Cornelius Kircher, on alternate nights as Lavinia, Don Roe as Lentulus and the Call Boy, Susan Schacker as Mettelus, Bob Eggers as Scintho, Bill Rapoport as Ferrovius, Mel McDaniel as the Editor, Gene Englehard as the Keeper, Bill Goble as the Ox Driver, and Jim Riddell as Caesar.
