Businessmen Urged to Hire The Handicapped

The Torrance Committee for Employment of the Physically Handicapped today called upon businessmen to consider the skills and experience of handicapped workers for any jobs open during "NEPH Week," beginning next Sunday, Oct. 5 thru Oct. 11.

Paul Diamond, chairman of the local committee, said that employment of physically disabled people "is a good business" for the community.

"The worker with a physical limitation when properly selected and placed is as good a worker and often better than unimpaired employees," Diamond said. He asserted their disabilities do not count when they are placed in jobs for which they are fitted. Chairman Diamond said handicapped workers are careful, interested in their jobs and less inclined to "job hopping" and absenteeism.

Diamond said that he had been informed by Mrs. Winona Ellis, manager of the local Department of Employment Office, that approximately 148 handicapped workers with varied skills and experience are ready for employment.

The Torrance office of the California State Department of Employment, affiliated with the United States Employment Service, offers to employers the experience and techniques acquired over the past 20 years in matching the actual requirements of the job with the skills and capacities of the workers, chairman Diamond said.

"We should use the employment service and the other cooperating community agencies in demonstrating the widely accepted principle that, it is good business to hire the handicapped," Diamond said.
