Dope Laws Subject of Panel Talk

Call Examination For Recreation Director's Job

An examination for the position of recreation director for this city has been called by the county civil service board, it was announced today by Walter Bradford, secretary of the local civil service commission.

Applications are being accepted now for this job, which only recently joined the list of civil service positions in this city.

Previously, filling the role of recreation director was left to the discretion of top city officials, who hired the recreation dept. head on a contract basis.

Last July, however, the City Council demanded that this automatic system be discarded in favor of the more sensible method of civil service examinations for this important job. Finally, three months later, an examination was called.

No one in city hall has been able to explain why it took three months to arrange for the test. Ordinarily between two and six weeks is required for the necessary procedure.
