SPECIAL ELECTION SOUGHT FOR NEW CIVIC CENTER, POOL, POLICE STATION

CROWDED: Petitions calling for a special bond election are being circulated now. The bonds would provide a new police station, among other things. Above is a view of the crowded conditions in the present station.

A new attempt is being made to obtain a new civic center, police station, and swimming pool in the city of Torrance.

Sixty petitions calling for a special election are being circulated at present by various civic groups.

The petitions urge a $700,000 loan issue for the civic center and police station and $250,000 for the plunge.

These two bond issues were defeated by a narrow margin at the April municipal election.

Need Cited
The move was regarded favorably by City Manager George Stevens. "We have to do something soon," he said. "We're just bulging at the seams. Our population is increasing at a fantastic rate and it's impossible for the city employees to keep up with the growth unless we have more room in which to work efficiently. The situation is critical, as anyone who has ever been at the city hall or police station will know."

Signatures Needed
A total of 1075 signatures are needed on the petitions, but proponents hope to get 3000 signatures.

Date for the proposed special election has been set for sometime in October.

Both measures failed to gain the necessary two-thirds majorities during the regular municipal election last April. The civic center and police issue lost by a narrow 3819 to 1993 and the pool was defeated by 3785 to 2132.

Both the civic center and the pool would be located on a 30-acre site north of Torrance boulevard and west of Madrona avenue.

BANDINI FIRM BUYS OIL RIGHTS TO CITY AIRPORT

Successful bidder for the mineral rights at Torrance municipal airport was the Bandini Petroleum corporation, it was disclosed this week.

The firm topped the City of Torrance and one other bidder by offering a bonus of $21 per acre, a $1 per acre lease fee and a 13 1/2 per cent royalty for the airport lease.

More than 400 acres of airport property are involved. Bandini is associated with the Seaboard Petroleum corporation is drilling a test well near Pennsylvania avenue and Pacific Coast highway, Lomita, about a quarter of a mile from the southeast edge of the airport property.

The Bandini representative said the company has mineral rights for covering about 1200 acres in southwest Lomita and the airport area.

The firm would not divulge further drilling plans, but any drilling from the field would have to be done by whipstocking since CAA regulations forbid drilling locations in the flight strip area.
