

Bond Issue to Combat Juvenile Delinquency, Police Chief States

RECREATION AND POLICE FACILITIES INADEQUATE

Torrance's present lack of adequate facilities for juvenile recreation can well be the main spring of an acute delinquency problem, asserted Police Chief W. H. Haslam in an interview today.

"As most citizens of Torrance know, the police department sponsors an organization known as the Torrance Auxiliary Police which is made up youth," Chief Haslam stated. "Our membership has been dwindling because we do not have adequate meeting rooms and entertainment facilities in our department. When my officers interviewed a large number of these youngsters recently, most of them stated emphatically that there is not a constructive thing in Torrance for them to do. If they want to swim they have to go to a neighboring town, we don't have adequate ball diamonds here, nor do we have a civic-sponsored recreation center where young people can meet and have fun under proper guidance."

Corked-up Energy
Chief Haslam went on to state that he hoped, in the interests of the city's young people, that the voters would approve Proposition 1 and 2 on October 19. The best time to stop juvenile trouble is before it starts, he explained. "Idle youngsters full of corked-up energy can cause more trouble than a sack full of wild cats if they don't have a constructive outlet for their drive," the Chief asserted.

Police Handicapped
In the same interview, Chief Haslam explained also that his department is critically handicapped in serving the city through the lack of enough room to do its work properly. "The heart of a police department is its record system," the Chief explained. "We not only do not have a record room, but we don't even have space for files. It is wasteful and extravagant to operate this way. In fact, our facilities are so antiquated that they will be condemned within the next two years."

"Every one of us on the force has carefully studied the proposed plans for the new police station and we are unanimous in stating that it is the best we have ever seen. It is our understanding that many months of study spent in perfecting a police station for Hawthorne went into the preparation of our plans by Marion J. Varner,
