Two-Week Mission To Begin At Nativity

Two Oblate Missionary priests who have conducted many successful missions or revivals over a period of years in California and the Southwest, will open a two-week schedule of religious exercises next Sunday, October 14, at Nativity Catholic church, 1447 Engracia avenue at Cota street.

Father Joseph L. Murphy and Father Edward J. Collins will speak at all of the seven Sunday services: 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, and 12:15. Their sermons will also be heard every evening at 7:45 p.m., during the two weeks from November 14 through 28. The Oblate fathers are members of a congregation of religious priests whose prime purpose is the conducting of missions.

Father Patrick McGuinness, pastor of Nativity Church, invites all adults from high-school age and up, whether Catholic or non-Catholic to attend. Said Father McGuinness, "The mission offers a golden opportunity to have your doubts resolved, your confusion dispelled, and your faith strengthened . . . prayerful consideration is given to the great truths of eternity, and to the duties and obligations of those who would be followers of Christ."
