

EL CAMINO ADDS 2 NEW BUILDINGS

Art and theater arts students of El Camino college will utilize the facilities of the new ultra-modern theater arts building and art center with the opening of classes September 12.

While classrooms of the Theater Arts additions will be ready for occupancy with the opening of the fall semester, the Little Theater itself will not be completed until Christmas, Carl G. Arfwedson, director of business at the college, indicated.

Drama and music departments plan to present their annual play and musical productions in the Little Theater for the first time next spring.

The theater building will house practice rooms, a choral room, band room, music library and faculty offices. An attractive patio is incorporated in the plans for the Little Theater.

The new college health center will be available with the opening of classes; the swimming pools built in conjunction with the center will not, however, be ready until the spring semester, Arfwedson said. All art classrooms will be utilized in the third new building, the college art center. Construction for this phase of the building program was completed during the summer months.

Completion of the new buildings will bring the total valuation of the college to over seven million dollars, the director of finance stated.

The combined music, Little Theater, and dramatic arts facilities valued at more than one million dollars, will be the largest structure on the campus.

The blessing was given by college campus is completed on a pay-as-you-go basis Arfwedson emphasized in indicating that no debt exists on any of the college facilities.

READY FOR OCCUPANCY... El Camino's new art center will be open for classes on September 12. Bungalows on the original college campus formerly housed all art facilities.

NEARING COMPLETION... El Camino college's new Little Theatre and adjacent music and dramatic arts facilities are rapidly reaching completion. The million dollar project will constitute the largest structure on the college campus.
