Judge's Dignity Ruffled Over Towel-Clad Zsa-Zsa

When a judge meets a type he's not seen before and has to rely on his wife for protection, by George that's news!

Judge John A. Shidler of the South Bay Municipal Court had the unique experience recently when his wife asked him to call at the set where she was busy working on the Bob Cummings television show. She hinted she had someone she wanted him to meet.

Nobody can deny that judges meet many persons of all types during their time on the bench, but this meeting topped them all for the judge.

His wife, lovely Rosemary DeCamp who plays Bob Cummings' sister on the show, took him by the hand and introduced him to the fabulous Zsa-Zsa Gabor.

And, to top the topper, curvaceous Zsa-Zsa was clad in a mink trimmed towel.

A jurist may adjust himself to meeting Miss Gabor in a courtroom on legal matters, but she'd hardly be clad in a mink towel for the occasion, which all explains why the normally-imperturbable Judge Shidler was a bit taken aback.

His wife, meanwhile, was enjoying a hearty laugh at her mate's attempts to maintain proper decorum against this onslaught against judicial dignity.

However, the Judge, seeking to be named to Los Angeles County Superior Court, Office 28, had little time to be too upset (and just who, even a judge, could be angry over meeting Zsa-Zsa), for court appearances keep him on the run.

And with June 5 primaries just around the corner, can a man afford to remain upset for long?

ZSA-ZSA AND THE JUDGE

'It Takes All Kinds' may be the feeling of Judge John A. Shidler as he poses with Zsa-Zsa Gabor and his wife, Rosemary DeCamp, on the set of the Bob Cummings Show. Judge Shidler of the South Bay Municipal Court is seeking elevation to the Los Angeles Superior Court, Office 28. Miss DeCamp introduced him to the towel-clad Zsa-Zsa when he visited the set of the show in which his wife portrays Margaret, the sister of photographer Bob Collins, played by Cummings. Here the Judge inspects Zsa-Zsa's papers while everyone else inspects Zsa-Zsa.

THOMAS RADCLIFFE
... new National Supply post

Radcliffe Given New Appointment

Thomas K. Radcliffe has been appointed district manager, industrial products sales, it was announced this week by J. D. Spalding, works manager of the National Supply company.

In his new position, Radcliffe will direct all industrial products sales activities which was previously handled by Glenn C. Merkle, recently appointed plant manager.

Radcliffe was first employed at National in 1940 as a student apprentice. Except for six years in the Navy and experience principally in Naval Aviation in both the European and South Pacific theaters of operations, Radcliffe has been successively employed as estimator on industrial products, and until the recent promotion, sales representative in the industrial products division of the National Supply company.

Dear Editor

Shouldn't Have to Pay for Pool

Editor, Torrance Press

Do you mean to say we have to pay to use the swimming pool we voted for? With our five children it would cost us from 9 to 11 dollars a week to use the pool for an estimated 12 hours per week.

At that rate we could afford a pool in our backyard—but then we'd be taxed for that as well as the Municipal pool. We're already double-tax payers, as my husband has a shop in Waltham.

Surely there could be some system to allow Torrance residents use of the pool, while charging out-of-town swimmers. At the very least have season family tickets at a reasonable rate. And how about the poor taxpayer on his way home from work—must he also pay 50c to cool off for 15 minutes in the pool his taxes are already paying for building and maintaining? For heaven sake!

Sincerely,
(s) MRS. AL KLEMPAN
