TEENAGERS VOLUNTEER SERVICES AT HOSPITAL

(Editor's note: This is the second in a series of articles on the volunteer program at Harbor General Hospital.)

How many times do you pick up your daily newspaper and see the phrase "juvenile delinquents" staring you in the face?

There are fewer juvenile delinquents now than ever before yet they are played up to such a degree that there seem to be four times as many as there really are.

"Juvenile delinquent" is a term used to describe many teenagers, often times innocent ones. Those teenagers who like rock and roll and Elvis Presley, and who like to stay out late on Saturday nights are often referred to as potential juvenile delinquents.

We have been so concerned with the cause of delinquency that we have overlooked the reasons why some teenagers are not delinquent.

Candystrippers
Here in the South Bay area we have one answer to this

All Year Program
These boys and girls work not only in the summer but also during the school year. They are required to work a minimum of four hours a week and many do this after school or on Saturdays.

They make their own uniforms which are red and white striped jumpers and white blouses for the girls, and red and white striped shirts and white pants for the boys.

Youngsters are allowed to work in any part of the hospital with the exception of the TB wards. Many of them work in pediatrics after their sixteenth birthday.

The teenagers are really doing something for their town and their country. They are also getting invaluable training and experience.

Many of these teenagers decide to become doctors or nurses or go into other aspects of hospital work.

The Candystrippers are one of the effective forces working for juvenile decency instead of delinquency.
