9-Year-Old Is Understudy In 'Bad Seed'

Perky Kathy Hogan, 9-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hogan, 1527 El Prado, who has a wealth of television and dancing roles to her credit has now added an important dramatic phase to her career.

She is currently studying the role of Rhoda Penmark in the Maxwell Anderson classic, the "Bad Seed" which opened at the Chapel theatre, 1613 Gould lane, Manhattan Beach, last weekend.

Actually she is the understudy for the difficult part and is scheduled to perform on the three remaining Sundays, February 17, 24, and March 2. Ten-year-old Kirby Gangel, Manhattan Beach, can be seen in the Friday and Saturday night performances of those weekends.

Kathy's most recent effort was on the Red Skeleton TV show at Christmas time in a Can-Can routine. She has been dancing professionally for four years and has done a number of television appearances.

Besides concentrating on the role of the fiendish Rhoda, she is currently working on TV commercials and has been for the past year. Her acting career began in 1955 with the Children's Screen Actors Guild.

Rhoda's grief-stricken mother, Christine, is played by Jo Harestad, popular Little Theatre personality in Torrance. On the basis of dress rehearsal she gives one of the finest dramatic performances this season. Edward Cante, also from Torrance, is cast as Leroy, the smart but ill-fated handy man. More about them next week.

'Fair Lady'

The introduction of a new hair style by the Cosmetology department of El Camino college is one of the highlights of an activity-packed National Beauty Salon week on campus this week. The "Fair Lady" style features sides swept up and back from the face line, ending in a moulded line of reverse curls over the ear. Tiny feather curls are used to soften the cheek. The top is draped to one side, ending in soft bangs slightly covering the hairline; and the back is gathered in a cluster of short curls resembling a 'baby bustle.'
