Girls Learn Child Care

Guides and dolls played a big part in the recent demonstration of Child Care techniques, when Rosemary Sharrow, District School Nurse, visited the Home Economics class at Flavian Elementary school.

Seventh grade students, taught by Miss Mary Fisher, participated in the demonstration, using a life-size doll brought by one of the students.

How child care principles could be applied to baby sitting, was pointed out in a practical demonstration on baby care, including bathing, feeding, and changing of diapers.

Girls in the class learned by seeing and doing, and the question-and-answer period which followed, showed an enthusiastic approach to this phase of the Home Economics course, according to school officials.
