

Virginia Law Sought to Fly Old Glory at Capitol

RICHMOND, Nov. 22 (AP)—A Virginia lawmaker said today he will ask the next General Assembly to require that the Old Glory be flown from the highest level of the State Capitol and other State buildings.

Gov. Almond's decision that since the Capitol has only one flagpole the State flag would fly on it alone. The Stars and Stripes which formerly occupied the top position, will not be flown until another flagpole is erected—probably not for several months.

It is possible to display both flags from the same flagpole. But if this is done the national flag must be on top. At that, the Governor balked. He proclaimed a separate but equal policy for the two flags.

Removal of the Flag from the Capitol, Webb said, "is entirely repugnant to the historic devotion and loyalty of the citizens of Virginia to the government of the United States of America."
