

NEW INDUSTRY—The multi-building manufacturing plant which will be built in Torrance by Kentile, Inc., nation's leading producer of resilient tile flooring, is shown here in an architect's rendering. Construction will start this month, north of the Civic Center, with occupancy expected in January, 1960. The plant will spread out over 18 acres, utilizing 250,000 square feet for the main buildings. Slate Groundbreaking for Kentile Manufacturing Plant Kentile, Inc., the nation's leading producer of resilient tile flooring, will erect an ultra-modern manufacturing plant containing 250,000 square feet of floor area in Torrance, to meet the demands of the growing market in the Western states.

Joseph L. Koleski, Kentile vice president of manufacturing, said Torrance project would include two plant buildings and a separate office building, reflecting the latest developments in architecture and engineering.

It will utilize 18 acres of land at 2929 California St. Koleski said that the company would depend on local employment to man the entire production, distribution and sales operations.

Groundbreaking ceremonies signaling the start of construction will be held at the plant site June 15. Among the Kentile executives who will take part are David O'D. Kennedy, president; Charles A. Neumann, vice president-sales; Miss Cecilia Kelly, vice-president-treasurer; Art Tarrant, West Coast Sales Manager; and Koleski.

Koleski said that the Torrance plant would be occupied by January, 1960.

main factory building housing the manufacturing area, control laboratory, offices and cafeteria. The L-shaped edifice will be the shipping and warehousing building. A separate office building (not in picture) will be erected west of the main buildings. East of the building there will be constructed a tank farm capable of holding 250,000 gallons of liquid materials. The acreage will provide space for 250-car factory and 50-car office parking lot.

ing 4,000 square feet, with up-to-date testing equipment to test raw materials and for rigid product control during manufacture; and a cafeteria and locker rooms.

In the manufacturing area of the same building, there will be a 50,000 square foot mezzanine floor of reinforced concrete designed for a 250-pound per square foot live load. The manufacturing area will have a clear ceiling height of 30 feet to accommodate massive machinery.

BETTER HIT THE BOOKS, COWBOY—Since Mrs. Maurine Pool's fourth and fifth grade class at Calle Mayor School is studying the early west, students are recording their reading progress on a map which features a race across country on some of the old, historic trails. Students in the class have read more than 900 books this year and reported on them. Comparing notes are Paul Schulsinger, Leonard DeVore, Marcia Noble, Kathy Carroll and Mrs. Pool.

Old West Won With Textbooks

The atmosphere in Mrs. Maurine Pool's fourth and fifth grade class at Calle Mayor School has a distinct Western flavor these days, in keeping with the class's study of their pioneer forefathers.

In social studies, the class has been learning about the men and women who pioneered the way to California, Oregon, and other parts of the west. As a way of winding up the unit, the class Friday presented an original play in costume for the other students at the school.

During the year, members of the class read more than 900 books—averaging about 30 per child—and made reports on them.

The progress of the class was recorded on a large map of the United States and the children raced across the country on the Santa Fe, Oregon, and other trails. As a child completed another book and reported on it, he moved a little further on the trail.

They also built a small model village of the type that might have been built by the pioneers in the Willamette Valley, at the end of the Oregon Trail.

The topographical features of the U. S. were recorded on a salt and flour relief map, which showed students why trails must curve around mountains and through valleys. The map also showed clearly the characteristics of the land.
