class at Yukon Elementary School, which is studying weather as part of its elementary science units. They are bringing science objects from home to study, in addition to reading, writing, arithmetic and other subjects.

West Virginia Plant Expansion for Boxes Told

Two new corrugated box plants for the container division of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, one in Torrance, one in Phoenix, Ariz., will be opened as soon as the necessary production facilities can be installed. L. Frank Thompson, division manager, announced today.

The new plants will bring to 17 the number of box factories operated by West Virginia's Hinde & Dauch Division, the company's container division.

The Torrance plant, at 555 Maple Ave., will be operating by Jan. 1 of 1960. Thompson said that work on both plants is being expedited in response to the growing demand for the company's M-R board, a recently developed moisture resistant corrugated board finding wide acceptance among fruit and produce packers in California and Arizona.

M-R board is now being used in substantial quantities, and the new plants will have complete facilities to provide the quick service and delivery important to fruit and produce packers.

The new box plants will augment long established western facilities of West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company. The company has maintained paper sales headquarters in San Francisco since 1925, and opened a new multiwall bag and grocery bag manufacturing facility in Torrance this month.

Quarters for the Torrance box plant are being constructed adjacent to the multiwall bag plant.
