

"Dining With Ron"

By RON BURPO

One pound of boneless meat serves four, this includes boned meat hamburger, liver, and most canned meats. One pound of meat with a small bone will serve three, this includes round steak, ham slices, etc. One pound of meat with a larger bone serves two people, such as steak, shoulder cuts, and chops. Good quality veal is light gray in color and fat is clear, firm and white. Beef is fresh red color, well marbled with fat, bones red porous in young beef. Good lamb varies in color from light to dark pink; the fat of young lamb is white and brittle. Good pork is grayish pink and the flesh is well marbled and covered with firm white fat.
