Shade of McCarthy—the Mud Flies Early

A new low in political irresponsibility was attained last week with an attack by candidate John Barton on the City Council. He accused the council of putting political pressure on the police department.

The attack, which nearly caused Chief Percy Bennett to eat breakfast twice, did not say the police had succumbed to the pressure. The Chief, like most others concerned, ultimately were struck by the folly and absurdity in the statement and laughed it off.

Of all the police departments that could be accused of this and worse, it was the worst possible taste to select Torrance's.

Although this charge can be laughed off as sheer fantasy, it should put voters on their guard: some candidates, clutching desperately for an issue, are making wild statements about many conditions, circumstances and institutions that could do irreparable harm.

Some examples are to be found in the remainder of Barton's platform:

1. A planned study of narcotics prevention. A planned study is the best kind, of course, but narcotics have been studied more than they have been used. There is nothing more to study. A good, workable law that would take the profit out of dope seems out of vogue this year.

2. Planned use of recreation facilities for all groups. The Park and Recreation Commission has done a faultless job of keeping city parks open for everyone. Private groups can make private arrangements, even with the commission.

3. Decrease homeowner's tax by requiring others to meet fair share.

Who are all these others? Big business, without which Torrance would be a wide spot in the road. The concept of penalizing industry is neither new nor peculiar to Mr. Barton. Industry adds the taxes to the price of the product, and the home owner pays it anyway.

4. Decisions based on city needs rather than special interests. What giant corporation had a $1,000,000 assessment reduction while home owners had an increase?

He abstains from naming the corporation, either because it does not exist or because there was good reason for a reduction.

5. A citizens' police commission to prevent political pressures on our police department.

The City Council is elected. The commission would be elected. If there were pressure, how would this plan do anything but transfer pressure from one group to another? Mr. Barton had better come up with some answers, for this platform will lose him even the few votes he may have had to start.

The candidates who recognize, as does every citizen, that Torrance is a great, grand, wonderful, friendly, and prosperous city BUT THAT IT CAN BE MADE BETTER—and who tells how—will win his—or her—seat on the City Council.

R. C. Mahon Will Build Huge Unique Bridge on Ohio River

A huge, 1600-foot steel bridge, that spans the Carquinez Strait in California.

The bridge will be a link in Interstate Highway 64, stretching from Richmond, Va., to St. Louis via Louisville, Ky. It will span the Ohio between New Albany, Ind., and Louisville.

The steel superstructure will be fabricated in, and shipped from Detroit. It will consist of two 800-foot spans, each double-decked. Each deck will carry a 42-foot wide, triple-lane road, with walks at each side.

The bridge will contain 15,000,000 pounds of fabricated steel, 1,250,000 pounds of reinforcing steel and 8000 feet of aluminum railing.

The federal government is paying 90% of the costs with Indiana and Kentucky each paying 5%.

Mahon competed with four other firms in bidding for the bridge which, when fully completed, will cost $15,000,000. The structure will be the first over the river between Indiana and Kentucky in 20 years.

The structure is of a unique tandem, tied-arch double-deck design—one that requires fabrication methods used only for one other bridge in history. This is the cantilever truss structure.
