OUTDOORS WITH MEL

BY MEL SALTZMAN

Answering some of the mail and phone questions I get at Sportville U.S.A. Why does monofil line twist in trolling and can it be removed in any way? Monofil line will twist after constant trolling especially on certain lures and the twist works up on the line which is on the spool. It can be eliminated to some degree by the use of goodswivels. Some of the twist can be removed by trailing the line behind the boat with no weight on it. It is best to carry a extra spool filled with monoline to be used only for trolling.

Can salmon eggs be used trip after trip and even year after year without spoiling?

After a jar of eggs is opened the eggs immediately start to spoil but they can be saved for another day by this simple trick. After you are through fishing drop a lit match in the jar and screw the top on while the match is still burning. The match burns out the existing air and curtails spoilage.

My line seems to fray quite a bit after a few casts. What's the trouble? Probably you have worn a groove in your guides and tip or in the pickup arm of your reel. Monofil line is very hard and will groove steel under the pressure of fishing. Replace worn parts and replace tip with carbide for long service.

What is the best kind of tackle box for salt water?

The wooden boxes have proven best through the years. They come in all sizes for all needs. The plastic boxes are now coming into their own and we should get some good ones in the next few years. If you buy a wooden box varnish the brass fittings as they are plated and can rust. A metal box will rust and ruin a lot of gear inside.

Can I get a fishing outfit for both salt and fresh water?

There isn't really a reel or rod made that will catch both big salt water fish and trout. Some of the fresh water reels and rods are salt water resistant and work fine on the breakwater for medium size salt water fish. Wash the reel off in fresh water after each trip and you'll get years of good service from this tackle.

Are fish color blind? Why do they hit one color lure one day and another color in the same spot another day?

For more information and up to date fish reports, call Mel at Sportville, FAirfax 8-2173 or come on in.
