FILM SCENE — Scene from "Surf Fever" film to be presented by South High freshmen. Friday night shows Willy Moss III.

South High Freshman Class Presents Surf Film Friday

The fever that's sweeping the coast like an epidemic has been aptly depicted in John Severson's new movie, "Surf Fever."

This full-length color adventure centers round the devoted followers of the surf, and the waves they ride. John Severson will present his program at South High School auditorium Friday at 8:30 and 9:30 p.m.

"Surf Fever" was filmed in California, Hawaii, and Mexico. The movie will be narrated by its creator, who also is credited with the new surf photo annual, "The Surfer," available at the movie.

Severson, himself one of the top big-surf riders, has produced a picture story of this fast-growing sport, its feverish followers, and their greatest love—the exciting surf.

He has ridden the surf—waves over 20 feet—and conveys the thrill of it with art, excellent photography, and lively narration.

Some of the surfing spots in the film will be Waimea Bay, Sunset Beach, Makaha, and Waikiki from the Hawaiian Islands.

On the California coast the surf is exploited from Santa Barbara to Carlsbad, including Secos, Malibu, Huntington Pier, Doheny, Trestle, Brooks St., San Onofre, and others.

San Miguel in Baja California is one of the most thrilling of the small-surf sequences, with surfers riding within feet of a rock jetty.

The freshman class is sponsoring the showing. Admission is $1.25.
