Service Stations Stop Stamps

letter, called a "veiled threat" by the proprietor, stated that McVee could continue to operate as he had in the past and the company would protect him from any legal action taken under the new law.

The letter continued that the company would not consider the new law an excuse to break any agreement previously made.

"Tomorrow morning," he continued, "we're going to tell the stamp dealer to take his books back."

Joining Drive

George Mikel, owner of the Richfield station at Cfavens and Marcelino Ave., is another Torrance station owner who has discontinued giving away stamps. Mikel mentioned that he did not want the stamps when they first became popular. However, he took them because the customers demanded them; he took them in order not to lose business.

When the law was announced, he decided this would be a good time to stop the give-away.

Mikel visited other local station owners who thought the discontinuance was a good idea. The Torrance area proprietors had signs printed to that effect.

The station owner also noted that he hasn't faced too many customers who demand the stamps or say they will go elsewhere.

He continued that the public would rather pay a few cents less for the items than handle the stamps. "Now, businesses can operate on their own merits, and not draw customers just because of the stamps," he added.

Wednesday, Mikel went to Gardena dealers in an attempt to, as he puts it, "Clean it up." Those dealers don't like stamps either, he added, but they are waiting for someone to move first.

Walter O. Tripp, Long Beach station proprietor who was first to begin the anti-stamp drive in the area, mentioned that the gas dealers paid $11.50 for the same size stamp pad as was purchased by the markets for $8.

He continued that the customer redeems the $11.50 worth of stamps (per cost of the dealer) for $5 worth of retail merchandise.

"Tripp added that this is strictly a shakedown racket, everybody is being taken."
