I turned the set off and haven't had it on since.'

"Never turn my set on in hot weather. That big tube gets so hot it makes the sun seem like an ice cube.' "Sometimes I read a good book twice and enjoy it. But can't say the same for TV.' "Watched both conventions and haven't had it on since.

I'm waiting for the big special in November." "My kid watches re-runs, but then—just before school 12:00 ( was out last June-his teacher told me he was backward, anyway.

"A neighbor told me that her nephew who used to be a radio actor was hired on TV to use his voice in some old silent movie re-runs. So, I don't watch it, but I listen once in a while just to make her feel good." "I always hear the TV industry is under FCC pressure to put on public service programs. Are re-runs a public 12:30 (4) Loretta Young service? "The nevelty of TV has worn off at our house since my dad found his old crystal radio set with earphones in the attic last spring. "Everybody's mad at TV in our house because mom did everything that a TV cooking class said to do. Now, we've got doctor bills for stomach trouble and my little sister Susie has nightmares about some kind of a pump they used on her."

"Our TV set has been on the blink since spring and my wife and I have agreed not to spend the money to fix it until fall when something new might be on."

If the TV image makers are depressed over the negative responses in this poll, let them take heart in the one voice raised in defense of industry efforts to capture and entertain the summer TV audience. Here it is:

"I watch TV all the time, all the time, day and night, night and day-even when there's nothing on it! . . . Now if you'll excuse me, mister, I gotta run and kee pa date all my relatives made for me with some female doc whose name is Anna List.'
