

Female Officers Attend Policing Class

Putting in time to polish policing techniques, 30 district officers from the South Bay, 13 of which are from Torrance, will attend special classes presented by the Los Angeles County Sheriffs Academy tomorrow and Sept. 9. On these days, the police-women will attend eight-hour classes to study jail fundamentals and female officer demeanor. The course will put special emphasis on the proper manner of conducting a complete narcotic search and rules and regulations of routine female bookings.

Torrance women from the Police Department include Bernice Florence, Charleen Alarcon, Dorothy Moore, Lois Reynolds, Dorothy Peters, Donna Kerns, and Wanda Madden. Other officers to attend are Margaret Virden, Patricia Hall, Elaine Foseer, Patricia Findley, Joan Schmittou and Maxine Hahn. The academy has made a change in its policy and is now admitting female officers for the full 16-week course, the department announced.
