

Art Group Holds First Fall Meet

TAG—Torrance Art Group held its first meeting of the season at 15237 Chanera St., Gardena.

The meeting began with slides of exhibits and shows held during the past year presented.

Members were asked to bring recent paintings which highlighted the evening with group discussions and evaluations of the works shown.

Currently, there is an exhibit by club members at the Torrance Woman's Club, 1422 Engracia, slated through September.

Two members of the organization are currently showing art work at the Torrance Bank of America, Del Amo.

A four-man showing is being presented for six weeks by members at a bank in Azusa.

New officers for the coming year are Lee Cummings, president; Marian Cummings, co-president; Aileen Keeler, recording secretary; Lil Baker, corresponding secretary; Jean Townsend, treasurer; and Vlasta Field, historian.

Other officers include Joyce Fairchild, newsletter; Duane Wilder, publicity; Bette Seidler, hospitality; Jim Crump, program chairman; and Betty Maxwell, librarian.

Letter to the Editor

EDITOR THE PRESS:

A vote for the future of all our children is involved in the Oct. 11 election.

Fifty thousand of Torrance's 100,000 people are in two categories. They are either under ten years of age or in their thirties. The latest Federal census accounts for half the population of Torrance with 21,000 adults thirty to thirty-nine and 29,000 children nine years old or younger.

This dramatic population distribution explains not only today's school financing problem but gives us plenty to think about in the future.

This is a problem the Board can't do much about. The kids are here, and more are coming, and your Board of Education is entrusted with the responsibility of financing their education. Without the help of the voters we have nowhere to turn. Our only source of funds is the voter's privilege to provide or deny.

Since we have been operating schools at $50 per pupil below the county average for unified districts for the past ten years, we believe we deserve your support Oct. 11.

J. G. ARNOLD
Past President,
Torrance Board of Education

Free Navigation Classes Offered by Coast Guard

The United States Coast Guard will conduct a free class in boating, piloting, navigation, seamanship and small boat handling at the Fern School Cafetorium, 1314 Fern Ave., Torrance, beginning Monday, Sept. 19, at 7:30 p.m. The classes, open to all who are interested in safe boating, adults and teenagers alike, will continue for 12 weeks. With the State of California now issuing boat registration numbers as well as enforcing boating laws along with the Coast Guard, the classes this fall are "important to all interested in boating as a recreation and sport," according to Captain Stanley C. Lindholm, commander of the 11th Coast Guard District.

SKYHAWKING for the Naval air force is Lt. Leslie Asquith, 17021 Ainsworth Ave. Serving as flight operations officer of his squadron, Asquith spent two weeks on annual reserve training cruise.
