

Report Reveals Speedier Ways on LA Freeways

Freeways are shortening automobile travel times despite steadily increasing vehicle registration in the Los Angeles Metropolitan area, a recent Automobile Club of Southern California travel time study reveals.

Although there has been an 11 percent increase in the number of vehicles in the area since 1957, it is somewhat easier to drive around now than it was three years ago, thanks largely to the addition of 47.5 miles of freeway to the system, the study noted.

The five-day study, conducted by the club's engineering department in June, covered 342 miles of surface streets and freeways over 17 routes from various suburban areas to Downtown Los Angeles. Test runs were made during morning and evening peak hours.

Overall average speed was found to be 26 miles per hour as against 24 m.p.h. when a similar test was made over substantially the same routes during June 1957.

Most striking gains in average speeds were recorded in areas served by the Ventura, Harbor and Long Beach freeways. One route utilizing 27 miles of the Ventura and Hollywood freeways permitted an average speed of 33 m.p.h. This compares with an average speed of only 22 m.p.h. over a comparable route in 1957.

Another route utilizing 19 miles on the Harbor Freeway and Figueroa St. permitted an average speed of 42 m.p.h. in 1960 as against 33 m.p.h. in 1957.

Dunworth, Anthony S. Gallo, Miss Mary Faye Gilliland, Mrs. Alice Hammond, Mrs. Pearl Hebert, Mrs. Alice Hedgecock, Mrs. Frances Kaltriter, Mrs. Gladys Lewis, Mrs. Flora Marrs, Mrs. Margaret Pelland, Mrs. Wanda Reynolds and Mrs. Mina Stewart.

Eye Doctor Notes Relationship of Grades to Vision

Pointing out that the slow learning child is often one who can't see properly, rather than one who is short in intelligence, Dr. Irving K. Nelson, vice president of the county Optometric Association, declared today that the reopening of schools will again bring this problem to the attention of parents and teachers.

"Four out of ten grade school children have hidden vision defects not easily recognized by the layman," according to the local optometric leader.

"Even when a cursory examination reveals 20/20 acuity, a vision problem can still be the reason behind failure to learn at the normal rate.

For example, a child may be unable to make both eyes focus as a team while reading or drawing. This lack of binocular coordination blurs the words the child is trying to read and causes eye-strain," Dr. Nelson said.

"Since most children do not realize they are being handicapped by a vision defect, it is the responsibility of the parents to have their child's eyes examined regularly and to continually watch for signs of the vision problem.

"Warning signs of a vision defect can be found in the appearance of a school child's eyes. A healthy and normal pair of eyes should be able to handle school work without discomfort or fatigue. Swollen eyelids and inflamed eyes are the result of eye-strain and should signal an immediate examination," he concluded.

Jewish Holy Days Observed Now

The most solemn holy days of the Jewish faith, Rosh Hashonah (New Year) and Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement) occur this year on Thursday, Sept. 22 and Saturday, Oct. 1. The faithful Jews of Temple Menorah of the South Bay met at the Mormon Stake, 2000 W. 174th St., Torrance, for worship, last night for the evening services which introduced the High Holy Days. This year is 5721 according to the Jewish calendar, dating back to the traditional date of the creation of the world.

Morning service for Rosh Hashonah will commence at 10:30, today, Sept. 22, at the Mormon Stake, with the children's services scheduled for 2:30 p.m. Special children's devotions have been prepared for this service.

Rabbi Henri E. Front, spiritual leader of Temple Menorah of the South Bay, 112 N. Catalina Avenue, Redondo Beach, will conduct the special liturgy for the holidays. Persons interested in joining in worship should contact the Temple, FR 9-5983 and FR 4-9208.

Assisting in the ritual will be Cantor Harry Newman, chanting the musical portions of the service, joined by the Temple Menorah Choir under the direction of Fay Newman. Student-Rabbi Harvey Block, studying for the rabbinate in Los Angeles at the Hebrew Union College, a branch of the world's oldest and largest Jewish seminary, will aid in the reading of the prayers, according to George L. Lewison, president of the Temple.
