National Guard Openings Exist For Young Men

Major General Charles A. Ott Jr., commanding general of Southern California's National Guard 40th Armored Division, this week announced that openings exist in the division for eligible young men who wish to fulfill their military obligation.

"Young men who would like to take advantage of the opportunities open to them in the National Guard should contact their local armory today. The 40th Division is recruiting to full authorized strength immediately in order to meet the greater defense responsibilities required today in our country," General Ott stated.

GOOD NEWS

It was pointed out this should be good news for high school seniors and other young men under 18 1/2 years of age who desire to complete their military obligation without interrupting their college or vocational careers for the two years required by selective service.

He added that men who complete the six months active duty training may go on to earn commissions as second lieutenants by completing courses at one of the available officer candidate schools.

"Those who wish to join a completely volunteer organization where they can an important part in helping make America strong while serving in a hometown unit with friends and neighbors should visit their local National Guard armory now," concluded General Ott.

OFFICE WORKERS

The supplying of temporary office workers, mostly women, to industry has grown into a $67,000,000-a-year business, according to the December Reader's Digest. Five companies operating nationally hire the workers and rent them out by the day.

Food Giant Opens Harbor Area's Newest Bakery

Customers Able To See Product Fresh from Oven

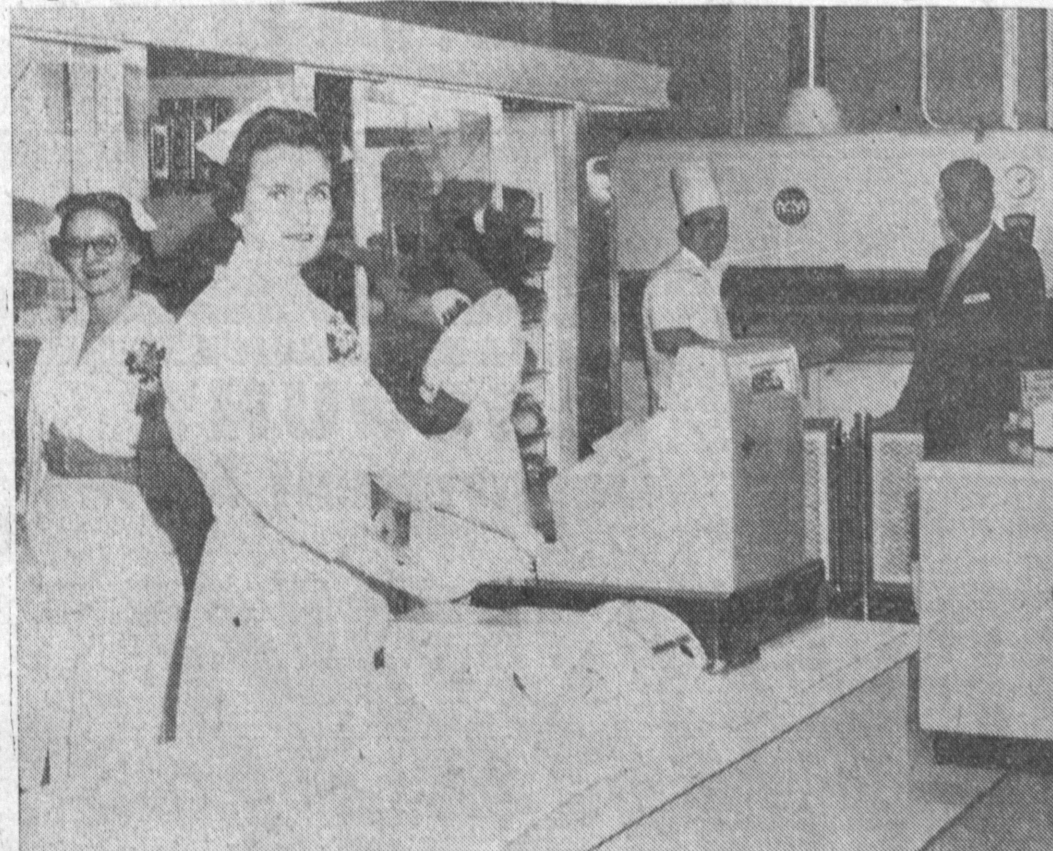

Just opened in the Food Giant Market at Pacific Coast Highway and Hawthorne is the newest, most modern bakery in the Los Angeles area.

Here, Food Giant customers will be able to see their breads, cakes, and pastries baked before their eyes and to buy them while they're fresh, fragrant, and piping hot. The bakery will work during store hours, so that there will be almost no delay between the time the delicious good baked goods leave the oven and the time they're placed on sale.

RAILING BETWEEN

The big bake oven in the new Food Giant Bakery is separated from the market proper by a railing which keeps customers safely out of range of hot pans, so that it's possible to watch golden-brown dinner rolls as they are removed from the oven, sniff their heavenly fresh-baked aroma, and take them along home, still hot to the hand.

There's a new departure in the display cases in Food Giant's Bakery. Instead of the usual front counter with wall cases behind it, all baked goods are shown in a glassed-in wall display case with no intervening counter. Shopping carts can be wheeled right up to the cases. Not only does the new system make it easier to find and point out the desired item than it is in conventional layouts, but much crowding is eliminated.

BAKERY SHOP UNVEILED—Following the success of bakery operations in other markets of the well-known local chain, Food Giant Markets last week unveiled the bakery section of the Pacific Coast Highway and Hawthorne Blvd. store. Shown working in the new section are Jean Green, Marion Canavo, Viola Brand, Ken Thomas, baker, and Harold M. Freund, director of bakery operations for the chain.

And every day will be a special day at the Good Giant Bakery, with a complete line of Danish pastries, cookies, layer cakes, hot breads, dinner rolls, herb rolls, flaky dessert pastries pies, and all the good things that come from a bakery.

CHRISTMAS ITEMS

The superb line of baked goods regularly available is supplemented during this holiday season with many special items: rich fruit cakes in several sizes, honeycake stars, honeycake Santas (big, little, and in-between), gingerbread house, pfeffermusse, Christmas stollen, anise-flavored springerle, cakes especially decorated for Christmas—all with the flavor and aroma of Christmas in every bite.

All year 'round, specialties of the season will be on hand at Food Giant's new bakery. For the rest of those special occasions—weddings, birthdays, anniversaries, children's parties—the new Food Giant Bakery will be happy to take orders for specially decorated cakes.

The pheasant is so named from the river Phasis (empties into the Black Sea) where they formerly were prolific.
