Yarnell To Co-Star in Fall "Outlaws"

NBC talent discovery Bruce Yarnell has been signed as co-star and veteran film actor Slim Pickens will be a featured performer on NBC-TV's historically authentic "Outlaws" series which starts its second season on the network Thursday, Sept. 28 7:30-8:30 p.m.

NBC Program Development executive Frank Telford, "Outlaws" creator and producer, announced the cast changes today. Don Collier, in the role of Marshal Will Foreman, will remain as star of "Outlaws." Barton MacLane has withdrawn from the series.

Telford said the format for "Outlaws," in which guest stars portray infamous Oklahoma Territory badmen in dramas with documentary undertones, will remain unchanged.

The son of a retired Los Angeles police detective, six-foot-five Yarnell leaves New York this week for Hollywood to begin filming "Outlaws" episodes. He will play Deputy Marshal Chalk Breeson in the series.

Yarnell, winner of a 1960-61 season Theatre World Award for his portrayal of General Kinesias in the Broadway musical comedy, "The Happiest Girl in the World," also portrayed Sir Lionel in another New York stage hit, "Camelot," this season.

He was signed to an exclusive NBC contract last fall by David Tebet, vice president, Talent relations, for the network. Yarnell has previously been seen on NBC-TV in the special color broadcast of "Annie Get Your Gun," which starred Mary Martin and John Raitt, and in "Rosalinda," which starred Cyril Ritchard, on "Producers' Showcase."

He has performed in nightclubs of California and New York, in numerous other stage productions, and has cut two recordings, "House of the Lord" and "Bruce Yarnell Sings," for Capitol Records. A native of Los Angeles and alumnus of Los Angeles City College, he is married to the former Frances Chadwick, a fashion model. They have two infant daughters, Teresa and Waverly.

Slim Pickens, 41, a native of Kingsberg, Calif., began performing in western rodeos at 12. He has appeared in scores of western motion pictures, including "Rocky Mountains," "Boy from Oklahoma," "The Outcast," "Santa Fe Passage" and "The Great Locomotive Chase."
