Camino Science Instructor To Attend Study Institute

Leo E. Kallan, chemistry instructor at El Camino College, will participate with a group of one hundred chemistry instructors who will study intensively the new Chemical Education Material Study Text and Laboratory Program.

Kallan will attend the Western CHEM Study Institute, supported by the National Science Foundation, for five weeks commencing July 15 at Harvey Mudd College in Claremont.

Kallan will return from the institute and use the Chemical Education Material Study materials in his beginning chemistry teaching assignment at El Camino College for the 1961-62 school year.

The beginning chemistry course at El Camino College is a high school equivalent course taught for students who did not take chemistry in high school, or who wish to strengthen their background before enrolling in general college chemistry.

The CHEM Study objectives include the development of new teaching materials for the high school chemistry course and a revamping of the curriculum to give added emphasis to the role of the laboratory in the study of chemistry.

ONLY ONE Kallan is the only junior college instructor to be included in the CHEM Program this year. El Camino is the second two-year college to be included in this event. Oakland City College was included with 24 high schools during the initial CHEM Study Program last year.

In addition to Kallan, the Harvey Mudd Institute will include ten high school instructors from Southern California who will work with Professor Lloyd E. Malm of the University of Utah, currently on leave as assistant director of the CHEM Study Program.

SIMILAR GROUPS Similar groups of eight to ten instructors from the Chicago, Minneapolis, Seattle and San Francisco areas will be included. A champion institute is also being held at Cornell University for the eastern part of the country.

Kallan has been a member of the El Camino faculty for four and one-half years and has been primarily concerned with the beginning chemistry course. He has also been instrumental in forming an engineering materials laboratory at the college. He received his master's in chemical engineering from the University of Michigan.
